TOM WRIGLEY WRITES FROM WASHINGTON

THIS "DO-IT-YOURSELF" business has gone so far the U. S. Navy is taking on $10,000,000 worth of fix-upper stuff. Maybe Mr. Robert had something to do with it. Anyhow, the old steel bunks and bare port holes and grim bulkheads are going to be dolled up and made attractive. The Navy, obviously, couldn't call in its ships for this brightening-up job, so it is sending "do-it-yourself" kits to the men at sea. They will do a bit of decorative painting her and there, fix up some chintz and curtains and make things such as backrests for bunks, hinged wall tables and nifty built-in gadgets to hold things. The Navy, never at a loss for a handy word, calls it "habitability". Far be it that tough Mr. Sailor man is getting soft. The Navy made a study of things and comes up with the conclusion that our men on the battle-wagons and other ships all down the line can't work to best advantage in drab surroundings. Just how far $10,000,000 will go toward doing the job cannot be estimated on a "do-it-yourself" basis; neither can the number of sore thumbs and bruised fingers be counted in advance.

STUDY ELECTION RESULTS

Local elections this November will provide few straws in the political winds to show trends in the national election a year hence. They will be studied, of course, but not taken as of national significance. The course of events in the next ten months and the personalities of the candidates themselves and their backgrounds will largely determine the results all down the line.

ATOMIC MADE STEEL

Atomic power, when available, may bring important changes to the steel industry, U. S. Bureau of Mines reports. The industry may spread into smaller units. Iron ore may be produced by atomic power right at the iron-ore site. Electric furnace production of steel from scrap may be practical in steel consuming centers as a result of low cost atomic power produced electricity.

DAIRY SURPLUS LOWER

Agriculture Department reports that since 1932 dairy price supports have cost the government a staggering $1,200,000. The situation at last is improving. Purchases of butter, cheese and dried skim milk from May to now are below those of last year. By next Spring there is hope surpluses will be reduced to a level of no "over-hanging" stocks.

SCHOOL INSURANCE

Accident insurance for school children in Washington costs $1.50 per child this year as against $1.25 last. Reason is that the group insurance now covers football player insurance. Last year District high schools paid $7,500 in football player premiums. The higher rate now includes this extra.

IKE'S NEW AUTO

• People who see President Eisenhower pass in review along the street in his new limousine stare at the odd-looking car. It has a sliding panel in the top and the President stands up in the opening and waves to the crowds. This is much more convenient than the open limousines, but, as one newsman remarked, it looks like a jack-in-the-box.

EXPENSIVE MOSCOW

Foreign embassies in Washington own their own property and fix it up to suit their needs. They can buy anything they want at regular prices, their currency being exchanged for American money at established rates. In Moscow, however, the United States is required to rent its property at $102,500 a year, with the ambassador's residence costing $41,000 more in rent. The rate of exchange for American money is high, and that makes prices high.

DIPLOMATIC DITHER

Pakistan's recently appointed ambassador to the United States has two wives and for a time State Department protocol was tied in a knot. How would you seat two wives at a diplomatic dinner? Popular Ambassador Ali, however, relieved the tension by announcing that only wife No. 2, Canadian born, incidentally, will reside with him at the Embassy. The Ambassador's first wife, however, is well and favorably known in diplomatic circles here since she was with Mohamed Ali when he was an envoy here in 1952-53. Perhaps an exchange could be arranged later. According to Moslem law, Ambassador Ali could have four legal wives. Under diplomatic immunity, his two wives could reside at the Embassy. We have a firm friend, and one who knows diplomacy, in Ambassador Ali.

CAPITOL VANDALISM

A major repair job is in progress on one of the Capitol's most famous paintings—"The Battle of Lake Erie." It is a huge oil—20 by 30 feet—which hangs over the marble staircase leading to the Senate gallery. Last Spring a vandal hurled a heavy object at the canvas tearing a jagged U-shaped hole in it. Painted by William H. Powell in 1873, the picture depicts Commodore Perry and a cabin boy being rowed in a small boat from the disabled flagship "Lawrence" to the brig "Niagara." That was a desperate moment in the 1813 battle but when it was over Perry sent his immortal message—"We have met the enemy and they are ours." Congress voted $22,500 for the repair job.

ONE FOR DAD

Census Bureau Researchers, to make Dad feel better, say a $9,000 college education eventually pays off $103,000. Average lifetime earnings of a college grad are estimated at $268,000, while the high school graduate earnings average $165,000.

CAPITAL CHIPS

Returns on the Post Office switch to ball point pens replacing the scratchy things in use since the birth of the nation are encouraging . . . Agriculture is spending $15,000,000 to prop up potato prices, there being a 50,000,000 bushel surplus . . . Bill collection business is growing steadily according to the American Collectors Assn. . . . Uncle Sam is spending $38,000,000 to help finance private research against disease . . . Cattle on Ike's Gettysburg farm are black Angus, but out in Colorado the cattle are mostly white-face Herefords. The President agrees the steaks are tops . . .

PLAN ELKDOM'S PROGRESS

ELKDOM is on the march. It has been my privilege to attend lodge and State Association meetings from Maine to California. Everywhere I found countless, enthusiastic Elks vitally interested in Elkdom's dynamic tenets and determined as never before to "Serve Elkdom—Live Elkdom."

These two things have impressed me most:

1. The marvelous humanitarian services Elks everywhere are rendering to the less fortunate and
2. How little so many of our members know of the wonderful work their lodge, State Associations and the Grand Lodge are doing. We should not hide our many and varied accomplishments. On the contrary, we should make them better known, not only to the public but also to our own members. In fact, we need to sell Elkdom to Elks. To do so will help to solve our membership control problem.

Immediately following the disastrous flood in New England and Pennsylvania, Elks responded to the call of humanity in typical Elk fashion. They promptly rendered outstanding relief work, giving generously of their time, talents and possessions. Clothing and food were furnished by Elk lodges and State Associations. Many Elks opened their homes to the sufferers and lodges were used as relief headquarters. This was Elkdom in action.

The demands were so great that I issued an appeal to lodges in the unaffected areas for financial assistance. I thank all that responded so promptly.

This month we are initiating into our Order thousands of fine American citizens in "Plan Elkdom's Progress Class". We will make them better citizens and they will enable us to expand our helpfulness. Unfortunately, however, many of us have friends and neighbors who would make good Elks but who are not joining us simply because we fail to invite them. Let's get their applications now and, in getting new members, let us not forget that now is the time for lodge Secretaries and Lapsation Committees to take the necessary action to decrease the number of delinquents.

All lodges are making plans for beautiful Memorial Services for the first Sunday in December. Also in December the lodges will observe Elks National Foundation Night. I hope that every lodge will have a fund-raising project for the Foundation.

Earlier than that comes our traditional Thanksgiving Day, which this year falls in Elk sponsored "Know Your America Week". The theme of this patriotic week is "Consider the blessings of freedom", and that is most appropriate. Freedom is so much a part of our daily lives that we are too inclined to take it for granted. Let us take inventory of freedom's blessings, of the privileges and responsibilities that are ours, because we are citizens of the United States and members of the Order of Elks. It is my prayer that Almighty God will cause us to be thankful as our forefathers and breathe the spirit of Thanksgiving into the hearts of all of us—not just for the week but for all the weeks of our lives.

What a glorious privilege it is to be an Elk! And so with the privilege of being an Elk, there is also a duty to Serve Elkdom—Live Elkdom.

What Our Readers

Have to Say

Thank you for the splendid information and maps which we received from your Travel Department. We are very grateful and know that we cannot get lost with such well planned maps.

We think that the Elks Magazine travel service is to be commended for the information that it provides.

Mrs. Clarence E. Wittig
Bisbee, Ariz.

I certainly enjoyed the article about Formosa by Bruno Shaw which ran in September Elks. We need more writers with more information along these same lines. With the vast store of information that Mr. Shaw has at hand, I am wondering what might be the cost, and where might be obtained, a pedicab? This may be a useless question, but if available I sure would like the information.

Jerry N. Hinshaw
Hutchinson, Kan., Lodge

Far from being a useless question, Brother Hinshaw's request aroused Mr. Shaw's interest and he tells us that he would like to know too and has written to friends on Formosa to find out where, and how, a pedicab can be bought.

I always look forward every month to my Elks Magazine to see what there is new in Elks Workshop. I read my Magazine from cover to cover and, being retired with time on my hands, particularly appreciate the Workshop.

August C. Burkhardt
Sandusky, Ohio, Lodge

As a regular reader of your magazine I wish to call your attention to an interesting pair of facts in connection with Tom Wrigley's "last name in the phone book" item in your August issue. I have been told that the last name in the Los Angeles phone book is spelled "ZZYZZ" and I have seen that the last name in the Detroit phone book is, "Believe It or Not," spelled "ZZZPT." I think it most likely that this will end the last name business.

Maurice P. Babcock
Springfield, S. D.

The literature that your Travel Department sent relative to our trip to St. Petersburg, Florida, has been received. The Sinclair Oil Company, in response to your request, has forwarded the maps that we will need. I wish to thank you for your prompt attention to this matter. You have a splendid service that adds one more reason why it is good to be a member of the BPOE.

REPORT FROM FORMOSA

Elks Magazine reporter Bruno Shaw interviews Vice President Chen Cheng of the Republic of China at the V.P.'s home in Taipei. Mr. Chen is largely responsible for the land reforms that brought farmer prosperity to Formosa.

Agricultural, political and social reforms mark progress on Formosa.

IN THE FIRST of these two articles *reporting on my trip to Formosa sponsored by The Elks Magazine, I presented the substance of my interviews with President Chiang Kai-shek and other leading officials of the Republic of China. They revealed the determination of the Nationalist Government to launch a military expedition against the Red rule of Peiping to be timed with an uprising of the Chinese people on the mainland.

In this second article I shall describe the resources the Nationalist Government has developed on Formosa, and the agricultural, political and social reforms that have been put into effect, which give Nationalist leaders hope that their goal may be achieved.

The island of Formosa lies slantwise across the west Pacific, its nearest point only about a hundred miles from the mainland of China. It is about 14,000 square miles in area, approximately the size of our states of Massachusetts and New Jersey combined. The difference between them, however, is that while both these states lend themselves to a well distributed population with unrestricted opportunity for agricultural and industrial development, Formosa is three-quarters forest covered mountain, and only one-quarter arable and inhabitable lowland.

The Pescadores, lying thirty miles westward and generally considered a unit with Formosa, are a group of small, flat islands, which seem for all the world like irregularly shaped pancakes floating on the surface of the blue Formosa Strait. Flying over their intensely cultivated, checkerboard surface, they seem even tinier than the fifty square miles the surveys assure us they are.

No matter where you stand on Formosa, you are overshadowed by vast mountain ranges. From one end of the island to the other, from north to south, their massive peaks, towering as high in some places as 11,000 feet, wall the lowlands in the west from the broad Pacific to the east. There is no access from one to the other. To travel from Taichung on the central west coast to Hualien on the east, one has to go by road all the way around the island, either north or south.

Chinese immigration to Formosa began some three hundred years ago, mostly from Fukien, the province directly west across the Strait. In 1895, at the end of the Sino-Japanese War, the island was ceded to Japan. For fifty years, until the end of World War II, Japan held it as a colonial possession. With rare exceptions, its people were restricted in education to six years of elementary grade schooling, and to menial and subordinate jobs in government and industry. At the end of World War II, the 250,000 Japanese residents in Formosa were repatriated to Japan. In the winter of 1949 the seat of the government of the Republic of China withdrew to the island from the mainland; and today Formosa has a population of some eight million native Chinese Formosans, and two million voluntary exiles, about one quarter of whom are in the armed forces.

PART II BY BRUNO SHAW

Bruno Shaw, who in recent years has contributed several articles exposing various facets of communism's tactics, was formerly publisher of a newspaper in Hankow. This article, in conjunction with Part I in our September issue, is the result of his observations during a visit to Formosa late last summer.

The Republic of China, generally spoken of in the West as the Nationalist Government, has dedicated itself to creating in Formosa the "show-case" economy it was in the process of developing on the mainland when it was overthrown by the Reds with Soviet aid. Because of the weakened state of the nation, after eight years of war against Japan and Communist subversion, the program on the mainland proceeded too slowly to enable it to become an effective bulwark against Red undermining and aggression.

In Formosa, the Republic's Vice President Chen Cheng was determined that there should be no procrastination in overcoming the major problem that for many decades had been a source of misery for the majority of the Chinese people—redistribution of the land so that the farmers, the majority of whom have been sharecroppers, may own the land they cultivate.

To the Chinese people, of whom as high as 80 per cent on the mainland, and 54 per cent on Formosa, are farmers, a land reform such as this spells the difference between poverty and prosperity; and the difference between a buying power on the part of the majority of the people that would spur business and industry, and economic stagnation. No such advances could take place as long as the tenant-farmer had to pay as high as 65 per cent to 70 per cent of his crop in land rent, interest and taxes. And the Nationalist Government's attempt to reduce this by legislation to 25 per cent, in 1947, was too little and too late.

Similar tenant-farmer conditions, prevalent in many countries in the Far East, existed in Formosa when the Nationalist Government first arrived there in 1949.

Dr. Chiang Monlin, who is standing at right, Chairman of the Joint Commission on Rural Reconstruction, observes land contract negotiation, in the house of a Formosa tenant-farmer.

The changes that have been wrought since then by a three-cornered cooperative venture by landowners, tenants and government, are striking and profound. They have in all respects made Formosa the "show-case" of land-to-the-tiller programs wherever they may be needed, in the Far East or elsewhere.

During my stay in Formosa, I visited factories, agricultural and health stations, travelled the highways, the railroad, and by air, and accompanied by government engineers inspected the water conservation and hydroelectric projects already built and those under construction.

The most important and undoubtedly the most spectacular of all the programs

News of the STATE ASSOCIATIONS

DIGNITARIES ATTEND PENNSYLVANIA SESSION

The 49th Annual Convention of the Pennsylvania Elks Assn. in Harrisburg Aug. 21-24 found its attendance far less than anticipated; the hurricane floods in the northeastern portion of the State limited the number of delegates from that section. However, more than 1,800 Elks and their ladies attended the public opening session at which Mayor Claude Robins and Lt.-Gov. Roy E. Furman extended a civic welcome, to which retiring Pres. Ruel H. Smith responded.

Among the officials of the Order present at this meeting were Grand Exalted Ruler John L. Walker, Grand Secy. Lee A. Donaldson, and Past Grand Exalted Rulers Charles H. Grakelow, George I. Hall and Howard R. Davis.

The fine talk delivered by Elksdom's top executive at the first business session was very well received, as were the remarks made by Pres. Harley Olsen of the North Carolina Elks Assn., another special Convention guest.

The annual Student Aid luncheon was attended by 70 scholars, their parents, sponsors and Grand Lodge and State officials, who participated in the presentation of scholarship checks to 28 young men and women, among them Rose Scarpello of Ambridge who won the third-place $800 Elks National Foundation Award. Three other students of the Keystone State who won Honorable Mention in that competition, received checks of $500 each. The balance of the scholars were given $400 checks representing special National Foundation and State Assn. prizes. Another presentation ceremony saw 14-year-old Thomas J. Drungle, a newsboy of Scranton, receive the Carnegie Foundation National Hero Award as the result of his rescuing a drowning companion from an abandoned minehole lake. The young man accepted the award from Scranton P.E.R. Jerome Myers.

Just before the Grand Exalted Ruler and Mrs. Walker left the Convention City for their home on Tuesday, Mr. Walker presented to Past Grand Exalted Ruler Davis a $1,000 check as a Grand Lodge contribution for Elk relief work in the flood-ravaged areas of the State. This was matched immediately by a $1,000 Association check, and the next morning, when the full extent of the disaster was made public, the delegates authorized Mr. Davis to wire each of the State's 124 lodges for additional flood relief donations, so that the Elk fund for that purpose could reach the desired $10,000 very quickly.

The Annual Memorial Service was directed by K. L. Shirk, Jr., P.E.R. of Lancaster Lodge, with Past Pres. Edward D. Smith as memorial speaker and Past Pres. Wilbur Warner eulogizing Daniel J. Miller, the Assn.'s only former leader to pass away during the year.

Reading was selected as the Convention City for the Aug. 19-22, 1956, conclave with Past Pres. H. Earl Pitzer again named as Committee Chairman and Howard R. Davis assigned for the tenth consecutive year the work of the Veterans Service Commission in the State's 12 VA Hospitals. Installed by Grand Secy. Donaldson were Walter Urben, Charleroi, Pres.; A. Lewis Heisey, Middletown, Vice-Pres.; Wm. S. Gould, Scranton, Secy.; George Ellenberger, Jersey Shore, Treas., and Trustee (five years) Clarence E. Thompson, Etna.

The social program featured the President's Ball attended by 500 members and their ladies, with Mr. Davis, Mr. Donaldson, Mr. Urben, Convention Chairman Pitzer and the retiring President as speakers, introduced by Past Pres. Edward D. Smith. The State Elks Chorus competition, voted one of the highlights of the Convention, was won by Butler Lodge with York, Titusville, Williamsport and New Kensington following in that order.

DANVILLE WELCOMES VIRGINIA DELEGATES

Over 550 delegates and visitors were guests of Danville Elksdom Aug. 27-30 when the 46th Annual Meeting of the Virginia Elks Assn. convened.

Special guests were Grand Exalted Ruler John L. Walker and Past Grand Exalted Ruler Dr. Robert South Barrett, both native Virginians, and Leo P. Ronan of Decorah, Ia., a member of the Grand Lodge Ritualistic Committee.

Mr. Walker's inspirational address, delivered on the 29th, was received with a standing ovation by the delegates, among them 88-year-old Capt. Robert A. Dougherty, a member of Norfolk Lodge who is a resident of the Elks National Home.

Hampton Elksdom was prominent at this conclave—it was chosen as 1956 Convention host, it captured the Ritualistic Title with four of its officers on the All-State Honor Team and one of its P.E.R.'s, Francis J. Howard, was elected as new State Pres. Chosen as Vice-Presidents are Kenneth V. Brugh, Pulaski; Edward L. Curtin, Portsmouth, and Porter R. Graves, Harrisonburg. Reelected were Secy. Charles F. Curtice, Petersburg, and Treas. Donald S. McClarin, Norfolk. V. King Pifer of Hampton retains his duties as Chaplain, while E. V. Foretich, Newport News, will serve as Sgt.-at-Arms, and C. H. Kirsch, Richmond, as Tiler. Retiring Pres. Walter E. Barrick, a member of the host lodge, was appointed as a five-year Trustee, with Lawrence H. Hoover of Harrisonburg to serve as a two-year Trustee.

Business discussions found the Va. Elks Boys' Camp, Inc., a major topic. Having completed a most successful year with 378 deserving boys as guests, the Camp received nearly $7,000 from the State's lodges which contributed approximately $60,000 for other charities during the year. The Association voted its third

$1,000 to the Elks National Foundation and learned from Chairman Morris Lutto that its Veterans Service work had used up $6,000 in the last 12-month period.

The Grand Exalted Ruler, who was accompanied by his charming wife, presented a $400 Elks National Foundation Scholarship to Betty Lou Atkinson of Roanoke. A $200 Assn. Award went to Faith Young of Norfolk, with a $100 prize won by Grace Barbee of Roanoke. In the Ritualistic Competition, Norfolk's entry was runner-up with three men on the All-State Team, and Suffolk won third-place honors.

Entertainment included tours of the city, a dance each evening climaxed by a Grand Ball, two banquets, a chicken fry and several luncheons.

1,500 AT CHARLESTON FOR WEST VIRGINIA MEETING

The three-day Meeting of the West Virginia Elks Assn. which opened Aug. 18th at Charleston was attended by 1,500 Elks and their ladies and honored by the presence of the Order's new leader, John L. Walker. Other Elk luminaries in attendance included Past Grand Exalted Ruler Wade H. Kepner, Chairman Dewey E. S. Kuhns of the Grand Lodge Youth Activities Committee, General Chairman for the Convention, the State's newly-appointed District Deputies and Mayor John T. Copenhaver.

The delegates voted the continuation of the Assn.'s Crippled Children's Camp, a project in which they invested $3,000, and their monthly entertainment programs at the State's Veterans Administration Hospitals.

Two of the W. Va. students rewarded through various Elk-sponsored competitions who addressed the Convention were Patricia A. Waggoner, a $500 Elks National Foundation Award winner, and Carolyn Lee Morrison of Beckley, the State's Youth Leader. Sponsored by Parkersburg Lodge, Miss Waggoner's Elk awards for 1955 are over $1,100.

For the first time in the Assn.'s history a Permanent Secy. was elected at this Meeting—Garnett W. Shipley, a member of Martinsburg Lodge. Other 1955-56 officers of this group are George J. Jones, Wheeling, Pres.; Phil Cramer, Parkersburg; Wm. H. Craze, Morgantown, and W. Don Morris, Huntington, Vice-Presidents, and Frank Lautar, Moundsville, Treas. Retiring Pres. L. E. Pruett of Beckley was appointed a five-year Trustee, serving with E. G. Grisell, Moundsville; Dewey E. S. Kuhns, Charleston; P. K. Berwinkle, Weirton, and Nelson Clarke, Martinsburg.

A series of pleasant social activities was enjoyed by Charleston's guests, who returned to their homes with plans to meet at Parkersburg next year.

CHATTANOOGA TAKES TENNESSEE RITUALISTIC TROPHY

With nine teams participating, the Ritualistic Contest held in connection with the Sept. 1st, 2nd and 3rd Convention of the Tennessee Elks Assn. closed with the officials of Chattanooga Elkdom in first place. The competition was witnessed by many of the approximately 450 persons in attendance at the busy three-day conclave.

Mayor Frank Tohay of Memphis, the host city, welcomed the visitors at the Association banquet during which he presented keys to the city to Past Grand Exalted Ruler John S. McClelland, guest of honor, and to retiring Pres. Maurice Conn and Pres.-Elect E. D. Seagraves of Columbia. At the banquet, the top feature in a series of varied social events, Judge McClelland received a standing ovation at the close of his enlightening address. A dance followed the dinner, during which vocal entertainment was provided by the Confederates, talented second-place winner in the National Barbershop Quartet Contest.

During the business session, the delegates voted to sponsor a "Nurse's Scholarship Contest" in which four scholarships will be made this coming year—one for each of the State's districts. The Association further went on record as being enthusiastically behind the Elks National Foundation Scholarship and Youth Activities Contests and the Veterans Service program, and voted to continue its sponsorship of nearly 100 Boy Scout Troops.

The pattern of this year's Memorial Services was a departure from that of previous years in that it duplicated the ceremony held during the Grand Lodge Convention, The Very Rev. Wm. E. Sanders, S.T.M., delivered a moving memorial address.

Handling the activities for the Assn. with Mr. Seagraves until the meeting at Gatlinburg next year are Ranking Vice-Pres. Henry W. Beaudoin, Memphis; Vice-Presidents Julius Curley, Nashville; George Dykes, Oak Ridge; W. J. Barron, Morristown; Treas., John Menefee, Chattanooga; Secy. James B. Ross, Columbia; Tiler Harvey Plummer, Bristol; Sgt.-at-Arms C. Earl Ogle, Gatlinburg, and Chaplain William Hildebrand, Oak Ridge. Trustees are John Smith, Oak Ridge, three years; Thomas Stratton, Nashville, two years, and John Gasell, Jackson, one year.

A Time to Remember...

. . . that the Elks have not forgotten

WHEN THE FIRST casualties of World War II were announced, the Elks made this solemn pledge: "So Long As There Are Veterans In Our Hospitals, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks Will Never Forget Them".

How well has this pledge been kept? On Veterans Day, 1955, we pause to examine the record; proudly we find that in spite of the public's present-day apathy and apparent disinterest in the unheralded tasks being performed behind hospital walls, with a zeal that is inspiring our Committees continue to labor constantly and unselfishly to "serve those who served".

Their work is carried on in all parts of the United States. Their benevolence is ever present in 172 Veterans Administration Hospitals.

We Serve 127,000

The tremendous scope of the Elks National Service Commission program at the present time is better realized when we consider that on the average day, there will be 106,000 patients in 172 VA Hospitals; domiciliaries account for 17,000 more, and 4,000 are in contract hospitals. About 60,000 of them have various mental troubles; another 16,000 are suffering from tuberculosis, and 6,000 have heart and circulatory ailments; 3,000 will be cancer and tumor patients; arthritis and the like account for another 3,000, and 2,000 will be paraplegics. The balance may be considered those being treated for recurring ailments resulting from war casualties.

It is for these thousands, then, that your programs of encouragement, cheer and comfort range from friendly bedside chats or a hospital errand to professional variety entertainment, card parties, bingo, boxing, wrestling and other athletic programs. Patients are taken in groups to sports events outside hospital limits.

This type of activity can be described as Companionship Therapy, in which hundreds of our members and their families excel. In the occupational therapy field the Elks have done well, too, particularly in connection with supplying highly valuable and much needed leather to our VA Hospitals, whose budgets cannot provide this expensive luxury. We have won nationwide acclaim for the choice leather hides we have supplied, processed in brilliant colors, a supply whose total value through the years exceeds a quarter of a million dollars. Its chief source has been the California State Elks Association, although many other State Associations, notably Massachusetts, augment this supply through local sources. Radios, television sets and sundry appliances are contributed in an effort to keep minds and fingers busy, easing the boredom of long confinement, and training our veterans for employable skills upon their discharge.

On the "Medical Team"

Underlying all phases of our program is the effort to give the patients a sense of self-respect—the sense of being "wanted", so that his recovery is hastened and a quick return to his community in a respected and useful capacity is assured. Hence, our Elks and their ladies are recognized as an important part of the "Medical Team" in every one of the hospitals they visit.

Furthering our hospital programs is the newly-launched project aiding the veteran to find employment after hospital discharge, thus speeding his rehabilitation through his own sense of self-sufficiency and self-reliance.

Youthful draftees in Service are not forgotten either. Ten Fraternal Centers provide havens of hospitality in Tucson, Ariz., Santa Maria, Calif., Key West, Fla., Columbus and Valdosta, Ga., Waukegan, Ill., Louisville, Ky., Columbia and Sumter, S. C., and Cheyenne, Wyo. Here the lonely service trainee finds a friendly "home away from home" where his uniform is honored as a badge of dignity, and where he can find wholesome recreation during off-duty hours.

Our servicemen stationed in far-off Korea are also remembered; 1,200,000 cigarettes are sent to them each year; their letters of acknowledgment indicate a real and sincere appreciation of all Elks for this "touch of home" in a remote corner of the world.

Money and Time

Financial aid from the National Commission to assist committees in the performance of their dedicated tasks exceeds $325,000 annually, a sum more than matched by lodges and State Associations—not only with funds, but, more important, with priceless duty hours at all hospitals, the monetary value of which cannot be computed.

Thus on Veterans Day, 1955, we as Elks rededicate ourselves to our pledge never to forget our country's defenders, happy in the knowledge that whenever and wherever we have been afforded an opportunity to serve those who served, our record has been one of immediate and enthusiastic response.

PAST
GRAND EXALTED RULER

Bruce A. Campbell

ON SEPTEMBER 29th, Past Grand Exalted Ruler Bruce A. Campbell, prominent Illinois attorney and for nearly 50 years one of the great leaders of Elkdom, passed away in a hospital in Phoenix, Arizona. Mr. Campbell moved to Phoenix in 1953 after retiring from his law practice in East St. Louis, Illinois.

Past Grand Exalted Ruler Campbell was born in Albion, Illinois, in 1879, and after graduating from the University of Illinois in 1900, where he attained the coveted Phi Beta Kappa key for his scholarship, he studied law with his father, Judge Joseph M. Campbell, and was admitted to the Illinois Bar in 1901. He practiced law in Albion for a few years and then in 1905 moved to East St. Louis, where he practiced until his retirement. He was a member of the firm of Kramer, Campbell, Costello & Wiechert and a director in several corporations.

Throughout his career as an attorney, Mr. Campbell figured prominently in Illinois politics. He was a member of the Illinois House of Representatives from 1905 to 1907, and a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1912 and delegate-at-large in 1924, 1928, 1932, 1936 and 1940. In 1922, 1926, 1930 and 1932, Mr. Campbell was Chairman of the Illinois Democratic State Conventions. In 1932 he was a candidate for Democratic nomination for Governor of Illinois and, although he carried 86 of the 102 counties, he lost in Chicago, where his two opponents resided. Mr. Campbell was President of the East St. Louis Bar Association in 1912, and also a Past President of the Illinois State Bar Association. He was also a member of the American Bar Association and a charter and life member of the American Law Institute.

Bruce A. Campbell was initiated in East St. Louis Lodge, No. 664, in 1905, and immediately took an active interest in the Order. He was Exalted Ruler in 1909-10, and served in an official capacity in the Illinois Elks State Association continuously from 1908. In 1911 he was President of the Association. He had been Chairman of the Illinois Elks Association Crippled Children's Clinic since its organization in 1927.

Mr. Campbell particularly evidenced his interest in Elkdom by his active work at Grand Lodge Conventions, beginning with the Convention in 1910 at Detroit, to which he was a delegate. He attended every Grand Lodge Session since 1910 except one.

In 1914-1917, Mr. Campbell was Chairman of the Grand Lodge State Associations Committee, and in that capacity gave to the Order one of his most outstanding contributions by preparing a report, correcting the unsettled condition among State Associations with respect to their position with the Grand Lodge, for presentation to the Grand Lodge Convention in 1915. Through these recommendations, in 1916 the Grand Lodge Statutes were amended to establish the present system of State Associations.

At the Atlantic City Convention in 1918 Mr. Campbell was elected Grand Exalted Ruler and, following his year in office, he served continuously on Grand Lodge Commissions that have made some of the most important contributions to the progress of Elkdom. He served on the Elks War Relief Commission from 1918 until the work of that Commission was completed, including one year service, 1920-1921, when the Commission was charged with the duty of investigating the matter of the Elks National Memorial Building and The Elks Magazine. Mr. Campbell was a member of the Elks Memorial Headquarters Commission which constructed the Elks Memorial Building at Chicago and also founded The Elks Magazine. He was a member of the Elks National Memorial and Publication Commission from 1921 to the time of his passing, having served as Vice-Chairman from 1931 to 1937, when he became Chairman.

In 1952 Mr. Campbell received one of the greatest honors of his career when he was awarded an honorary degree by Northwestern University, and also was named one of the 100 outstanding personages in the Lewis and Clark territory in connection with the University's Centennial, which honored these two explorers.

On June 19, 1906, Mr. Campbell married Beulah Wilson Campbell, who survives together with one son, Joseph Bruce Campbell, owner and publisher of the Nashville, Illinois, Journal; one daughter-in-law; one grandson, Bruce A. Campbell II; one great-granddaughter, Cynthia Jean Campbell; one brother, Nigel D. Campbell, and three sisters, Mrs. Robert Craig, Mrs. Harry Ziegler and Mrs. Lloyd Bunting, in addition to several nephews and nieces. Services for Mr. Campbell were held in East St. Louis on October 3rd.

The Elks Magazine, which Mr. Campbell had served so actively and constructively for more than 33 years, joins with the entire Order in extending its deep regret to Mrs. Beulah Campbell, his widow, for the loss of this great Elk.

SANDERS of UCLA

Red Sanders works for the boys who work for him—which explains why his UCLA Bruins are a football power across the nation.

BY TOM SILER

Sportswriter for the Knoxville "News-Sentinel"

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS of football coaching—a hazardous way to make a living at best—has done nothing to dampen the wit, nor dull the tongue of Henry R. Sanders, whose UCLA teams are currently riding the high tide of victory on the West Coast.

A few years ago the University of Florida tried to lure Sanders away. Some 2,000 students serenaded the Sanders' apartment, a token of their admiration for the football master with the built-in grin.

"No coach in the world is worth all this excitement," said the coach to his pretty wife, Ann, then added, "I wonder which one has the rope."

A few weeks ago a Los Angeles newspaperman was interviewing Sanders on the common mistakes of the football coach—mistakes in scouting, during the game, and in judgment—and wound up by asking, "What is the greatest mistake a coach can make?"

"To run out of material," quipped Sanders, deadpan and about as serious as he ever gets.

A look at the record would indicate that Sanders—known as "Red" since childhood because of an inordinate fondness for red sweaters—has made few mistakes. Going into the 1955 campaign his six years at UCLA added up to a handsome record of 43 victories, 12 defeats and one tie. The Bruins had lost only three Pacific Coast Conference games in four years. They captured the league championship in 1953 and 1954; and the 1954 powerhouse, undefeated and untied, shared the national championship with Ohio State and won the first annual Grantland Rice Award voted by the Football Writers Association of America. Sanders himself won the highly-prized Scripps-Howard Coach-of-the-Year title.

One major goal looms ahead for Sanders—Rose Bowl victory. His defeat there after a brilliant 1953 season only whetted his appetite for revenge. One lapse turned that memorable battle into a 28-20 triumph for Michigan State, the Big Ten champion. The Uclans led, 14-0, with four minutes left in the first half. Paul Cameron, the All-American tailback, went back to punt on fourth down from the 10 and already the Bruins had visions of going to halftime with a solid two-touchdown margin. However, Ellis Duckett raced in on Cameron and blocked the punt—he almost grabbed the ball off the kicker's toe—scooped up the ball and ran over for a touchdown. UCLA never recovered from the shock. Red was shaken, too—it was the first blocked punt against him in 11 years as a head coach, six at Vanderbilt, five at UCLA.

It is characteristic of Sanders that he permitted no hangover from that painful experience. The Bruins bounced back last fall stronger than ever, but the team was denied a shot at Ohio State in the Rose Bowl by conference rules—no team can go two years in a row. Now eligible again, the Bruins are generally rated as the team to beat for a return trip to the Pasadena classic, and as a national power again.

LAST September an AP poll of sports writers spotlighted UCLA as the team most likely to win the national title again this fall. Asked to comment, Sanders said, "That's the biggest joke I ever heard." He called his squad together and said, "This squad has just been picked in a nationwide poll to win the national championship," whirled around and walked off the field. The tinge of sarcasm in his voice put new zip in the drills.

Red was on solid ground when he disparaged the writers' glowing predictions. He pointed out that the entire first string line of 1954 was gone. The Uclans breezed past the rebuilding Texas Aggies team, 21-0, in the first game of 1955, but missed the seasoned campaigners a week later against Maryland, also a top-flight contender for national honors. Maryland won, 7-0. Even in defeat, however, Sanders' gang indicated it will be hard to keep out of the Rose Bowl next January.

The pressure builds up in this situation. Yet Sanders doesn't operate like a high pressure guy. Unlike most coaches, Red seldom bothers his staff on Sundays after the weekend games. The battle anew begins on Monday. Three of his assistants—Deke Brackett, Jim Myers and Billy Barnes—use their Sundays to pick up a few bucks scouting National Football League teams playing in Los Angeles or San Francisco.

"Red definitely isn't the finger-nail-biting type of coach," observed Myers, the line coach. "He plans the show and gives up the objective. We don't waste a lot of time on the superfluous."

Brackett recalled that Sanders occasionally would wave everybody off the practice field, "If he thought things weren't going right," Deke said, "or had a hunch about something, he would just call off the whole thing and start over the next day."

Sanders is probably best known as a superb organizer. He delegates the duties to a staff of seven, reserves the barbed-tongue assignments for himself, a chore that does not endear him to the athletes. Last spring one of the better halfback candidates told friends, "I'm going to quit the first time Coach Sanders jumps me." Sanders, of course, heard about the remark.

"Gentlemen," said Red in a squad meeting, "there is a player among you who has said he will quit the first time I get on him. I say to that player that he can quit right now, because I'm going to be watching everything he does from now on."

The player, of course, worked harder than ever. Red is tough, but the athletes respect that toughness. Friend and foe alike marvel at the way the players "put out" for Sanders. However, even Red's staunchest admirers wondered if the celebrated Ronnie Knox wouldn't be too much for him. Three years ago Knox

TRAVEL

BY HORACE SUTTON

A small-sized armada is shaping up for the coming cruise season.

FOR any sufferer from the cold who feels he needs to be evacuated to the lands of palm and balm, a small-sized armada is shaping up in the nation's ports. To Hawaii, the Caribbean, and to South America the ships will transport some 25,000 passengers. According to an estimate made by one major travel agent, American Express, cruisers will spend more than $20 million on ship fares, shore excursions, and local dust collectors.

The three major ports of departure will be New York, New Orleans, and Los Angeles and San Francisco, although Galveston will tap the rich Texas market. Two ships will buzz around the world—the "Kungsholm" in 97 days touching at such exotic out-of-the-way places as Funchal, Aden, Bangkok and Bali; and the "Caronia" in 108 days putting in, among other places, at Tristan de Cunha, Durban, Colombo, and, praise be, Long Beach, Cal.

Besides the regular steamship service that ferries vacationers southward no matter the season, there will be at least sixty-eight special cruises, most of them by transatlantic liners which have been diverted from the choppy and frigid North Atlantic run much to the delight, I would suspect, of their crews. Among the famous names that will show up on the atolls of the West Indies will be the majestic "Ile de France" which is booked for three twelve-day cruises, one departing December 22nd for those who want a tropical Christmas and the other two on January 6 and March 2nd. Later the Ile will make a pair of 17-day excursions and on these trips it will put by at St. Kitts, Fort de France, Barbados, Port of Spain, Puerto Cabello, Curacao, Cristobal and Matanzas. Who could ask for anything more?

That trim little cruiser of the French Line, the "Flandre" takes off out of Galveston on January 17th and from New Orleans on February 7 and 25th. A selection of ports of call for these trips might include San Juan, Fort de France, Port of Spain, La Guaira, Curacao and San Blas. The minimum tariff for this kind of a lark would come to $470, but there are a number of other sails into the sun that go for less.

While I am on the matter of the ocean liners which have been displaced southward I must make mention of the "Mauritania", that stand-by of the Cunard Line, which begins its season in the sun with a Christmas cruise December 22nd. It will look in on Nassau, Curacao, Kingston, Havana, St. Thomas, Martinique, Trinidad, Cartagena, Cristobal, Port-au-Prince, Antigua and Barbados. If anyone can remember one port from another after that rundown it will be a surprise to all hands.

Those past masters of the cruise business, the Dutch, will send the "Nieuw Amsterdam" southward on December 17 on a seventeen-day Christmas trip stopping at the usual ports. Thereafter the big Holland America liner heads for the palms on January 5, February 4 and 24 and March 12. While these trips begin at the edge of the $500 bracket, those air-conditioned tourist class liners, the "Ryndam" and "Maasdam", can get you a sun tan for less. For instance, the "Maasdam's" January 5th departure out of New York will spend fifteen days, enough for the average man, visiting Port au Prince, Cartagena, San Blas, Cristobal, and Havana at a minimal outlay of $290.

I mentioned before that a number of southbound trips could be had for reasonable amounts of cash, and in this regard I would like to point out that the Greek liner "Olympia" trots to Nassau and Havana for a week at a minimum of $175, and so, for that matter, does the "S. S. Nassau" which, despite its name, sails with an Italian crew. The "Nassau" also goes, perish the coincidence, to Nassau for seven days at $155. The "Queen of Bermuda" offers five-day cruises to Bermuda, of course, at slightly less, but bear in mind that you will have to debark and find a cabin ashore once the ship puts in to Hamilton.

Out of New Orleans the fanciest rig, I guess, is the famed yacht "Stella Polaris" which is scheduled for excursions of anywhere from 16 to 24 days, all in the

At each Conference the Grand Exalted

Ruler met with his Deputies located near that area and explained his program, designed to encourage every member to "Serve Elkdom—Live Elkdom." in detail.

Meeting with the Grand Exalted Ruler and his Deputies were Past Grand Exalted Rulers, the Grand Secretary, and representatives of the Elks National Memorial and Publication Commission, the Elks National Service Commission, the Elks National Foundation, Board of Grand Trustees and the Grand Lodge Committees.

Oklahoma Elks Dedicate Youth Center

The Elks of Oklahoma have seen their dream of a Youth Center become a reality. Work on the project, which will eventually be a $150,000 installation, began with the signing of a 99-year lease at $1 a year on a 27½ acre tract near Tishomingo, and officials pushed ahead on plans to have the main hall completed this summer.

A completely fire-proofed edifice with its own water supply and sanitary facilities, kitchen, storage rooms and dining hall, the $11,000 building was dedicated in August with Past Grand Exalted Ruler Dr. Robert South Barrett, who had donated $1,000 to this project, as principal speaker. Past Grand Exalted Ruler Earl E. James, a member of the Board of Directors, introduced Dr. Barrett at this program, during which the Center's President, Herman J. Salz, spoke.

The State's lodges will erect cabins on the site to accommodate potential guests from their own communities who will have the opportunity to enjoy two-week summer sessions and winter weekends learning all about camp life, various arts and crafts, Bible study, public speaking and general citizenship.

One of the most modern in the South, the building is completely air-conditioned and has been entirely redecorated.

Fulton, N. Y., Elks Give Cruiser to Sea Scouts

A cruiser, acquired recently by Fulton Lodge No. 830 for the Sea Scout unit it sponsors, has been placed at the disposal of Oswego County authorities for use in emergencies on the Oswego River in the Fulton area. The announcement was made by Ralph Wilcox, skipper of the unit, who informed civic officials of the decision to make the boat available for rescue operations in the event of river accidents. He reported that he and the Sea Scouts have prepared grappling hooks and other emergency equipment to assist in such work.

The skipper also stated that an adult person connected with the lodge's Troop Committee would be available on a 24-hour basis for immediate operation of the cruiser in the event that it is needed in an emergency.

ROD & GUN

BY TED TRUEBLOOD

All duck hunters are in the process of learning how to hunt ducks—none learn all the answers.

I AM AMAZED again each autumn by the number of men who are not duck hunters hunting ducks. There is a difference. Anybody can hunt ducks; to become a duck hunter requires study and thought and application—and real enthusiasm.

A friend of mine broke his leg one fall, just before the opening of the season. Naturally, he had to spend some time in the hospital, but as soon as he got out he began attempting to devise a way to hunt.

First, he augmented his conventional equipment with a swivel chair and an apple box. Then he hired two men. They drove him to the pond where he intended to hunt, put out the decoys and set the swivel chair and box in the blind. Then they carried my friend to it, set him in the chair and propped his broken leg, still in its plaster cast, up on the box. He shot this way for several weeks. He was a duck hunter.

The first thing a man must have to be a duck hunter is enthusiasm. Without it, he is licked before he starts. In our country the opening day of the season sees a mass exodus from office, store, shop and farm. Everybody who owns a shotgun is out. Every pothole, pond, slough, creek and river is lined with hopeful nimrods, crouching in the reeds, shouting at their assorted dogs, dashing frantically from one spot to another and blowing loudly on their duck calls.

About ten per cent of the opening-day crowd are real duck hunters who can't wait any longer. The remainder can be divided into three groups: Those who won't go again, those who will go once more, and those who will try it twice more.

We sometimes hunt a spot where the Snake River widens to flow around a group of islands. The road ends on the bank opposite them and the hunters park their cars there and put in their boats.

Last opening day we had finished shooting by the middle of the afternoon and as we were picking up the decoys I noticed a car pull up and park on the river bank beside the others already there. Somebody got out, pattered around a while and then spread a big piece of white canvas over some brushes at the edge of the water.

When we arrived at the landing we discovered that it was a man hunting ducks. He had on oxfords and nicely pressed slacks. He had put four decoys in the water, close enough to the bank so that he could drag them out with a stick, and he was sitting under the white canvas. Obviously, he hoped that a duck would fly within range. He had a shotgun.

But he was no more than fifty feet from several cars, which no duck within miles could help seeing, and the canvas was about eight feet square. It alone would scare away any duck in its right mind. On top of all that, sitting under the canvas as he was, he would have been unable to shoot if one had come by.

THINK some of the opening-day enthusiasts are there because they have seen the happy hunters in the ads. These photogenic nimrods always have big bags of game and they are invariably clean, fresh and immaculately dressed. Tain't so! A successful duck hunter is either hot, sweaty and mosquito bitten or shivering and wet, depending on the season. His clothes are well worn, ragged around the edges and stained from repeated contact with outboard motor grease, mud, blood and grime.

Some of the people who hunt ducks quit when they discover these truths. Others go out on the opening day because shooting starts at noon and they don't have to get up early. Many, of course, realize that the ducks are innocent then and much easier to bag than they will be a month later. Some like to hunt only when the weather is pleasant.

Anyway, for one reason or another, a lot of the folks who start the duck season with high hopes fizzle out before it has progressed very far. That leaves the field wide open to the real duck hunters and the ducks.

All duck hunters are in the process of learning how to hunt ducks. Naturally, the longer a man has been at it the more he will know, but nobody ever has all the answers and that probably is the sport's greatest attraction.

Last fall our first cold snap started on November 29, and two days later our first big flight of northern ducks arrived. My wife and I were set up on a pothole not far from home, decoys out and ready to shoot, half an hour before sunrise, but we didn't get a duck until 10 a.m. Then they began to move and we shot twelve mallards in the next two hours. The following day we were there early again, and this time we killed our limit between 10:30 and 1:00. So on the third day we got up late and were in our blind with the decoys out at 10 o'clock. The ducks never did fly and, although we stayed until the legal quitting time, we only got two. Why? I wish I knew.

The ducks were there. We could see thousands of them sitting on the open water of a big lake nearby. The weather was exactly the same all three days. We didn't burn out our pothole because we watched hundreds of ducks pour into it after we quit shooting the second afternoon. They just didn't come into it the third day and, not being a duck, I can't even guess at the reason.

In order to be a duck hunter a man has to learn to take disappointment in stride. There will be days when you won't get any, no matter how much you know, how many ducks there are in the country nor how good a setup you have. Some days they won't decoy and a call only seems to frighten them away. Then, though you may rearrange your decoys a half a dozen times and blow your call softly or not at all, they still won't come within range. A man who merely hunts ducks is likely to quit for the season after a couple such experiences, but a real duck hunter can remember similar days in the past. He may not be able to explain what is wrong, but he knows that the ducks likely will pour in like crazy the very next day.

One of the surest indications of a duck hunter—as distinguished from a man who merely hunts ducks—is this: He seldom shoots at a bird that is out of range. A man who merely hunts ducks throws far more lead at fowl he has no chance of killing than he does at those he could.

I went out one day last winter with a couple of young fellows who, no doubt, will become duck hunters eventually because they do have the enthusiasm, but at that time they still had a lot to learn. We had a big stool on the upstream point of an island and there was a brisk upstream wind. This meant that every duck that intended to settle among the decoys had to come straight in to the point of the island. Ducks don't light when they are traveling with or across the wind. And our blinds were on the point, directly behind the decoys. This should have insured us the easiest kind of shooting with our first shots at the birds as they came in, wings cupped and landing gear down, and the second as they flared up over the blinds.

MOST of the ducks that morning were moving downstream, against the wind, and they came well to the call. We'd open up on them when they still were several hundred yards away and when they saw the decoys they'd set their wings and start to come down. They had too much altitude to drop right in the first time, however, so they'd swing by either to right or left, cross the island, circle back upstream on the other side and then come straight into the decoys to light against the wind.

That is, the few flocks that were allowed to did. Most of them went by the first time at a range of 80 yards or so, and the boys could hold their fire. After they crossed the island and came back with the wind they usually were between 50 and 60 yards away and my companions would have the fidgets so bad by this time that they couldn't resist shooting.

The result was that far more ducks were missed than hit, and most of those that were brought down were crippled. The river had a brisk current. Every crippled duck meant a long chase with the boat. That was my job.

Naturally, I didn't like it because nine out of ten flocks that circled would have come around again. Then they would have been easy shooting where we could have killed them dead and picked them up from shallow water in which the decoys were set.

I didn't say anything, however. My companions were good boys who didn't lack anything but experience and they couldn't help it if they were unable to hold still in the blind or keep from shooting until the ducks were within sure range. As I said before, they have enthusiasm, and given another fifteen or twenty years they'll be duck hunters.

There are places in this country where it is no longer possible for a man to go duck hunting on his own, setting out his own stool and making his own decisions as to the best location for his blind and the other problems that must be solved. A man shooting in a club or public shooting ground, where the blinds are assigned by lot, takes what he is given and does the best he can under the circumstances. If the wind is wrong there is nothing he can do about it.

Fortunately, however, there still are regions where a man can use his own judg-

For Elks Who Travel

Caribbean circuit. Some stop directly at Montego Bay, Jamaica, in the height of that resort's social winter season. The Alcoa cruises which start out of New Orleans terminate, for reasons that escape me, but I'm sure are perfectly comprehensible to the people of Alabama, at Mobile. They begin at $525 and take about 16 days. For anyone with heaps of time, and I would think, equal heaps of money, the "Del Sud" and the "Del Mar" warm up with a stop at St. Thomas and then zoom for Rio, Santos, Montevideo, Buenos Aires, and on the way home, Curacao.

The "Stella Polaris" will make one beault from New Orleans whence it departs on March 31st bound for sixty-eight days in the Mediterranean. Among its fanciful stops will be, after Havana and St. Thomas, Philippeville, the Isle of Rhodes, the fabulous Greek islands of Delos and Santorin, Nauplia in the Peloponnesus. It will course through the Corinth Canal, not to mention the Kotor fjord of Yugoslavia, touching at Dubrovnik, a delightful medieval city still preserved by the Yugoslavs. All it will relieve you of is $1,490.

The "Independence" follows the trend to the Greek Islands too, but it will also stop off on the way at the Canary Islands, Madeira and Egypt. The "Britannic" will spend 66 days touring North Africa, the Near East and the glamor ports of Italy, Spain, and France. You drop $1,275 in the fare box for this cruise in luxury.

That brings me to the West Coast and in this regard I would like to point out that the "Lurline", that stand-by of the Matson people, sails from San Francisco December 21 and from Los Angeles the next day on a fourteen-day cruise to Honolulu and Hilo, returning to Los Angeles. The minimum fare is $311.50, a price tag which includes your hotel ashore. Matson owns several along the fringes of Waikiki. Thereafter the "Lurline" departs more or less regularly every twelve days to Those Delightful Islands, with the minimum roundtrip fare scaled at $260.

American President Lines takes off every three weeks from San Francisco and two days later from L. A., bound not only for Hawaii, but also Yokohama, Manila, Hong Kong, and Kobe. The whole business takes 42 days and comes to $1,147. It is a handsome trip and there are days to be sure, when you can swim in the outdoor pool. There will be days, too, when you will be grateful for that big floating American hotel that is so nice to come home to.

For those with dreams of Tahiti—does that leave anyone out?—there is an immense white schooner sailing out of Los Angeles every few months or so, making what even the most conservative creator of prose would have to call the trip of a lifetime. The schooner, named the "Te Vega" puts in first at Honolulu, then heads south to romance. It docks at Papeete harbor, Tahiti, for five or six days, then spends the next eleven cruising the Society Islands, which is to say, Bora Bora, Moorea, Tahiti Iti and like that. I won't go into the price as I would rather not spoil your interlude, but you have to admit it's a nice way of staying warm once the mercury congeals.

In the Doghouse

There's a dog for almost every hunting purpose.

TO the enthusiastic huntsman there is no sport in all the world to equal hunting and no dogs so highly prized as well-broken field dogs. I know that among the more than a million men who are Elks there are thousands of hunters. I know this because about a year ago an Elks Magazine survey revealed that no less than 41.3% reported an active interest in the sport. The many letters I receive from readers lend further support to this fact. While the letters deal with one subject—a dog—as the hunting seasons approach more and more of them are concerned with gun dogs, their care and handling, although throughout the year I'm asked questions about the training of such dogs.

America has been blessed with a wide variety of feathered game such as pheasant, quail, grouse, snipe, woodcock, duck, coot, goose and teal while rabbit and coon are the principal furred critters that call for the employment of dogs. Fortunately, too, there's a wide variety of hunting dogs, among which there's at least one breed acceptable to the most captious critic among huntsmen. Of course, I'm referring to the pure breeds among the dogs, although it has been known that dogs of mixed breeding sometimes do take the field in ways that are frequently effective. But the pure bred is more often the choice of the experienced gunner, as such dogs are descendants of generations of ancestors that have been trained for hunting. While nearly all dogs are natural hunters there are a few—and they'll be found in almost every breed—in whom the instinct to hunt is so dormant as to be nearly non-existent. Such, however, are rare. Now the dog, no matter how proficient as a natural hunter, has to be trained to cooperate in hunting with man. That's just what training does for the hunting dog; it teaches him to cooperate with the huntsman. Without such training the dog would be more likely to become a hindrance than a help.

Perhaps the most popular among the breeds actually used for hunting are the setters. True, some of the spaniels are more favored among the general public because, being smaller dogs, they more readily fit in as house pets. Also, for hunting use they are not as powerful as the setters and other larger hunting breeds, which is important when the game is located in country covered by heavy brush making it difficult for the smaller spaniel to break through. The pointers and retrievers are other reliable breeds for field work, with a comparative newcomer from Germany, the weimaraner, rounding out the list for what is designated as group 1 "Sporting Dogs" by the American Kennel Club, the organization which governs the formal activities of pure bred dogs and keeps the stud books without which a dog's pedigree would not be verifiable. However, among this group as well as the dogs in "Group 2", another division of sporting dogs which includes all the hounds, not all that are registered are actually used in the field, many being kept as show or bench dogs or simply for pet purposes. The American Kennel Club, or A.K.C. as it is known among the cognoscenti, not only verifies pedigrees but licenses dog shows, obedience tests and field trials. In 1954 no less than 51,308 dogs competed in field trials.

Field trials are events wherein dogs compete with each other under actual hunting conditions. Dogs are judged by performance and awarded ribbons and other prizes. There has long been a difference of opinion between exhibitors of sporting dogs for bench shows only and those who breed them for the hunting field. The latter have claimed that the bench show dogs being bred largely for appearance are too finely formed for field work and are not rugged enough. Also, there are those who'll tell you that the bench show dog is a witless fellow who is related in name only to the more sturdy gun trained field worker. Many breeders of sporting show dogs have indignantly denied this. However, there's a tendency for both camps to get together, to try to produce dogs that, while being excellent examples of conformation to a breed standard, will also be stronger and more proficient for actual hunting.

Among the forty breeds that comprise Groups 1 and 2 of the sporting dogs there's such variety that it would be

Stuart Bartlett of Vero Beach, Fla., Lodge, left, accepts the deed to the former Fair Building which the Elks have occupied for the past six years, from Larry Maher, Pres. of the Indian River County Fair and Fruit Festival Assn. from which the building was purchased. The transaction was commemorated with a supper and floor show attended by a large crowd.

Brenham, Tex., Elks Pass Half-Century Mark

More than 600 Elks and their ladies were on hand to help Brenham Lodge No. 979 celebrate its 50th Anniversary in September when 13 candidates were initiated by the State's second-place Ritualistic Team from Galveston. Among the candidates were M. H. Ehlert and his two sons. Later a barbecue was served under the supervision of 14-year Mayor Reese B. Lockett, Treasurer of the Texas Elks Association.

Principal speakers were P.D.D. Wm.

S. Traill, D.D. Gerald M. Brassard, and Assn. Pres. E. C. Bunch and Vice-Pres. E. F. Burgdorf. Past Pres. H. S. Rubenstein. State Secy., served as Master of Ceremonies.

Highlight of the occasion was the presentation of 50-year membership pins to the lodge's 40-year Secy. F. L. Amsler, P.E.R., 32-year Tiler Sam J. Muery and Charter Members August Brockschmidt and Capt. Edward Becker.

E.R. Joseph Picone welcomed the hundreds of visitors, among them Past Presidents F. W. Beckstead, Raymond L. Wright and Victor E. Ferchill.

LODGE NOTES

Presentation of lapel pins, marking 25- to 45-year and Life Memberships, followed a dinner celebrating the 1,000th meeting of Rockland, Me., Lodge. Among those honored were Charter Member B. B. Smith, 45-year Elk Raymond Thurston and Life Members F. C. Black, P.E.R. E. W. Pike and Secy. Joshua N. Southard.

When former Grand Treas. John F. Burke observed his 80th birthday not long ago, his daughter, Mrs. Marie McClure, arranged a surprise party for him, attended by 150 relatives and members of the Order, including Past Grand Exalted Rulers John F. Malley and E. Mark Sullivan, and John E. Fenton of the Grand Lodge Committee on Judiciary. Mr. Burke, a P.E.R. of Boston, Mass., Lodge is a P.D.D., Past State Pres. and former Chairman of the Grand Lodge State Associations Committee.

Within a very brief period, Cherryvale, Kans., Lodge lost three of its most devoted members—P.E.R. Alva M. Hall, Claude C. Bush who had served as lodge Secy. for more than 20 years, and 50-year Elk P.E.R. J. L. Strickler, the lodge's last Charter Member.

Hermiston, Ore., Lodge's kick-off on Grand Exalted Ruler Walker's Youth Service program was its entry of a handsome purple and white float in two parades. Carrying a pair of high school seniors and towed by a convertible bearing four students wearing the Elks' colors, its theme was service to our young people, emphasizing Scholarship, Leadership, Visual Aid and Student Loans. Designed and built by the Elks and their wives, the float won top honors in the fraternal section of the "Dress-Up Parade" opening the annual Pendleton Round-Up, and second prize in that section in the Umatilla County Fair Pageant.

Among the volunteers who assisted the Muscular Dystrophy Assn. to raise funds through an all-night telethon was a delegation of New Rochelle, N. Y., Elks headed by E.R. Frank Moroze. Topping off their participation in the 19-hour, all-night telecast from the Westchester County Center, the Elks made a contribution to the MDA in memory of a late lodge member, Philip Grabel.

Wichita, Kans., Elk P.E.R. Wallace Hutchinson and his Veterans Service Committee threw their annual watermelon feed for patients at the VA Hospital in August. This party saw 666 pounds of melon served, and a nice selection of prizes awarded.

Every year the Elks of Millville and Wildwood, N. J., cooperate in entertaining underprivileged youngsters on a boat trip. This photograph commemorates the 1955 affair when 299 children enjoyed the trip, a full-course dinner at the club owned by Wildwood Lodge's P.E.R. Walter P. Kennedy during which they were entertained by such luminaries as television, movie and radio star Johnny Ray, and a two-hour swim in the pool following "rides" at the amusement park.

Nogales Elksdom is proud of these officials who took the Arizona State Ritualistic Title.

GER CONTESTS GET UNDER WAY WITH CALL FOR LODGE REPORTS

Grand Exalted Ruler Walker's Membership Control Program moved in high gear when he asked every Lodge to submit to the Grand Secretary a complete report on its membership and delinquencies as of September 30, 1955.

In a letter to Exalted Rulers, the Grand Exalted Ruler asked them to report on the number of members initiated from April to October, the number reinstated and the number dropped for non-payment of dues in the same period, and the number of members delinquent six months since March 31, 1955, a year since September 30, 1954, and the number delinquent for over a year.

At the same time, each Lodge was notified of the number of debit points with which it entered the Grand Exalted Ruler's Dues Delinquency and Lapsation Improvement Contest, which ends March 31, 1956. The debits are based on the number of delinquents on each Lodge's record as of March 31, 1955. Object of the Contest is to improve on that record by collecting outstanding dues and by reinstating members who have lapsed.

To make the Contest fair, Lodges with similar records are pitted against one another.

This Contest will, of course, have an important bearing on the results of the Net Gain in Membership Contest, which rounds out the Membership Control Program. Lodges are competing for the highest net gain, with the goal for the Order set at a 5 per cent increase, and a substantial reduction in the number of members dropped for non-payment of dues will make an important contribution towards that goal.

was the most famous and sought-after prep star in California, a youngster whose football future was complicated by a hovering and doting father, Harvey Knox.

The youth enrolled at University of California in 1953, later quit, according to his dad, because the offense wasn't altered to suit the boy's style of play. Ronnie transferred to UCLA. To date there have been no rhubarbs. Sanders expects none. Father Knox remains in the background and probably will as long as Ronnie does well. The youngster tossed three touchdown passes in his first game and performed capably on defense.

Knox, in Sanders' calculations, is just one of the boys, or as he calls them, "the horses." Red is extremely reluctant to launch into a long-winded dissertation on techniques, strategy or psychology.

"The boys do the playing, not the coach," he says, succinctly. "Give me material. The difference between winning and losing is having the horses."

Hundreds of coaches abandoned the time-tested single wing offense for the T-formation in the 1940's and moved on to the predominant Split-T offense in the 1950's. Not Sanders. He has never coached anything but the single wing with a balanced line.

"Some call the single wing a horse and buggy offense," he says. "Maybe it is, but I like to think that we have a TV set on the dashboard."

"The basic stuff in our offense came from the University of Tennessee. (Three of his assistants played at Tennessee.) It's my opinion that Tennessee's fake-pass-and-run and the fake-run-and-pass are still extremely difficult to defend against. I know we've gotten a lot of mileage out of them.

"I picked up a few other things here and there," he adds modestly, but none of these technical items tells the story. Red oversimplifies the explanation of his success when he attributes all to material. Just as important, he knows how to create the vital intangible, morale; how to inspire boys, and how to teach the equally vital fundamentals, blocking and tackling. To Sanders football is almost that simple; he leaves the fancy football to others. His 1954 gang limited 10 opponents to a mere 41 points, blanking Stanford and Southern California, holding Maryland and California to a single touchdown.

Football can be pretty serious business on the UCLA practice field, but Red leaves the game there when he goes home. His tastes run to good books (mostly biography), Dixieland jazz music, or contriving a laugh at somebody's expense. Last winter Red lost a valued aide, Tommy Prothro, who took the head coaching job at Oregon State. Red tossed a farewell party for him. Knowing that Prothro had offered an assistant's job to Clayton Stapleton, then at Wyoming. Red rigged up a phony long distance call. The party was in high gear when Prothro was called to the phone. The caller was the "president" of Wyoming, who proceeded to castigate Prothro for tampering with one of his employes—great fun for everybody but the unsuspecting Prothro.

In this respect, Red hasn't changed much since his student days at Vanderbilt. Then, as now, his main concern was sports. The family—his dad was a traveling salesman—moved from Asheville, N. C., to Nashville when he was an infant. He grew up there, starting his football education as an under-sized urchin of 10 or 11 on the sandlots. He blossomed as a heady quarterback at Riverside Military Academy in Georgia, then enrolled at Vanderbilt in his own backyard in 1923. Unfortunately, the cards of football stardom were stacked against him. He was too small—5-8 and weighing 143—and the incumbent field general was Bill Spears, a notable triple-threater of that day. Sanders, however, lettered every year, also earned one letter in basketball and three in baseball. He captained the baseball varsity and later played as a minor league infielder for three years.

AS A COLLEGIAN Red heard many an impassioned dressing room oration by his old coach, Dan McGugin, who was famous for his psychological twists. Today's college boy, Red says, has outgrown that sort of thing.

"I'm afraid the players would laugh at me," he added. "The better players don't have to be keyed up and there are so many good ones that none of them can afford to let up. Quite often, you find yourself trying to relax the squad before a tough game."

One year UCLA was about ready to take the field for an important battle with Stanford. The room was quiet, the air explosive, the players expecting a few last-minute words of wisdom from the coach. Sanders noted the assistant coach next to him was wearing a new suit. Red looked closely at the material and said for all to hear, "I don't care what anybody says, you keep on wearing it. Don't pay any attention to them. That suit looks all right." The assistant blushed, the players forgot the game for a few seconds and then went out and walloped Stanford.

Another time the UCLA squad was aboard plane en route to a tough road game. While the motors idled on the runway, Coach Sanders stood up in the aisle, looked at a piece of paper in his hand and said, "I've just been given the weather forecast for the trip; it says, 'Partly cloudy and scattered Bruins.'"

Sanders scoffs at the psychological gimmicks, certainly the obvious ones. But he has been known to make a sly play on the emotions. At Vanderbilt, his 1948 team had whipped Maryland, Yale, Kentucky in a seven-game victory string. The team was tense and serious going into the traditional battle with Tennessee, which had not lost to Vandy in 11 years. Sanders wanted this one badly, but he didn't say so.

"Boys, you've already shown me what a great team you are," he said. "How you play today doesn't change the fact that you've done a good job this season. You don't need to show me a thing. I'm proud of you."

The Commodores exuded confidence from the first kickoff. The subsequent 28-6 victory climaxed Sanders' coaching career at his alma mater and set the stage for his departure for the challenging job on the West Coast.

Coach Prothro, who spent nine years on Sanders' staff, appraises his ex-boss as the best at "sizing up the football material—he seems to know how good a boy can be; he expects that very best, no more."

Only Sanders, for instance, could see the potential in 158-pound Lee Nalley. Red gave the youngster a scholarship at Vanderbilt in 1947. A year later, as a punt-return specialist in platoon football, Nalley led the nation with runbacks totalling 791 yards, a record that still stands. He repeated as the punt return champion in 1949 after Sanders had gone to UCLA.

Just last Spring Red faced a half dozen major problems in rebuilding a line riddled by graduation. The master stroke was the shifting of Don Shinnick, 210-pound fullback, to guard. By mid-season Shinnick was expected to be one of the finest collegiate guards on the West Coast.

Red developed this knack long before he became a "name" coach. You learn to improvise as you climb the coaching ladder, except that Sanders apparently learned unusually well. Red assisted Josh Cody at Clemson after graduating from Vanderbilt in 1927, but, at that time, was torn between football and baseball. Three years in the minors helped to turn Red permanently to football. He coached Columbia, Tenn., Military Academy, 1931-33; and Riverside, Military Academy, Gainesville, Ga., 1934-37, compiling a remarkable 55-4-2 record for those seven years.

Red moved on to University of Florida as freshman coach in 1938, to Louisiana State as line coach in 1939, then back to Vanderbilt in 1940, beginning a six-year hitch, interrupted by two and a half years in the Navy, 1944-46. Old Navy friends recall that Red had a wonderful time garbling Navy phrases, showing an especial talent for it within earshot of the Navy brass.

Ted Williams played on Sanders' 1945 Pensacola Navy baseball team. Telling a pompous superior of victory in a recent game, Red explained, "Williams hit one over the centerfield bulkhead." Sanders, once seeing an old coaching friend arriving, gave him a deadpan and frosty, "Welcome aboard, sir."

No one is safe when Sanders joins a conversational group. He is happiest when offering a solemn-faced rib, or stinging someone in a sensitive spot. The obviously stupid question is one of his favorite techniques. Among staunch Notre Dame supporters, he is likely to say, "Do you think Knute Rockne could win today?"

Tom Meany, well-known sports authority, tells of the time Red, meeting Oscar Vitt, then a big league manager, for the first time, asked, "Wasn't Joe Jackson over-rated as a hitter?" When Vitt grabbed an umbrella Red didn't know whether to run or be ready to defend himself. Using the umbrella as a bat, Vitt discoursed at length, with gestures, on the virtuosity of the baseball immortal.

Those who know Red best are as enchanted with his solid common sense as with this impish sense of humor. Wilbur Johns, the athletic director, was certain he wanted Sanders at UCLA after one day with him. That was January, 1949, and there's quite a story behind that one, too. Johns went to the American Football Coaches Association convention in San Francisco to shop for a successor to Bert La Brucherie. Sanders was one of six prospects on Johns' list, having been recommended by the late Grantland Rice, himself a Vanderbilt alumnus; Red Blaik of Army and Fritz Crisler of Michigan.

Sanders was headed for San Francisco, too, but the trains out of Chicago were snowbound. Red checked the airlines, accepting a spot on the waiting lists for the time being. Hours later he was preparing to return to Nashville when United Air Lines called to say he was booked out on the next flight.

"I didn't know Sanders at all," athletic director Johns recalled. "He moved to the top of my list after I had spent several hours with him."

IN LESS THAN TWO WEEKS Sanders was the new UCLA coach. Belatedly, Vanderbilt offered Sanders a long-term contract with retirement privileges of the academic staff, but the gesture came too late. Sanders was in no mood to reconsider even if he could have. He had not forgotten the grumbling of the alumni over Vanderbilt's slow start. Nor had he endeared himself to them by remarking, after a loss to Georgia Tech, that "no Vanderbilt player could make the Georgia Tech varsity."

"I think Red made the right move," observed Mrs. Sanders. "At Vanderbilt and in Nashville I think they would have thought of Red as a second string quarterback."

No sooner was Sanders hired than California newspapers tossed him a hot potato. One paper didn't even wait for him to arrive on the scene, telegraphing to ask how a Southerner would feel about having Negroes on the squad.

"You might say I'm prejudiced," he telegraphed in reply. "I'm definitely prejudiced in favor of any boy who can play football. I am intolerant, too—in-tolerant of any player who won't block or tackle."

Red, of course, has used many Negroes in his UCLA powerhouses; fact is, a tackle named Harry Thompson was the workhorse of the squad in Sanders' very first year at UCLA. And this fall Hardiman Cureton, 210-pound Negro guard, is the standout of the rugged Bruin line.

Sanders restated his formula for coaching success as soon as he became acquainted with the area newspapermen—"Eighty per cent, material; 10 per cent, luck in injuries and weather; nine per cent, coaching and strategy; one per cent, masterminding and magic." He added, for the benefit of the assembled scribes, that he hoped "to beat California and Southern Cal our share of the time."

Meanwhile, Red isn't the sort to forget the fate of his predecessor, Coach La Brucherie, who now tutors the California Tech team. La Brucherie piloted the Bruins to an undefeated, untied season in 1946 and moved on to the Rose Bowl, losing there to Illinois, 45-14. The coach got the bounce after a 3-7-0 season two years later.

Nevertheless, Red now is about as secure in his job and in the community as a coach can be. The team draws huge crowds and turns a neat profit, Red seems to enjoy congenial relations with the faculty members, and undoubtedly is the most popular coach in the Conference with newspapermen. He is always good for an "angle," always willing to help on a story and the writers enjoy his gags. A young writer who didn't know of Red's love of ribbing asked innocently for a statement on tomorrow's game.

"I think we'll win if Dame Fortune is with us," he said as solemn as an owl.

One of Red's faculty friends was chiding him one day because he never gets too chummy with the players. "Why don't your boys love you like they do other coaches?"

"That's easy," laughed Red. "I'm too busy coaching them; I don't have time to court them."

Actually, Red prefers to remain aloof, leaving the more personal relations with the players to his assistants. When he talks, the athletes listen; more often than not they remember what he has to say. Last year the players, in one game, were scattered about the dressing room at halftime when Sanders walked into the room.

"Walker (not the boy's real name), do you feel like playing any more?"

Before the youth could answer, Red growled, "You looked like a model out there, walking around without a spot on your uniform."

One of Red's long-time assistants summed it up best of all:

"Red can't stand a loafer. If you work hard he'll go all the way with you. If you don't . . . well, you just won't get to play any, that's all."

Which brings us back full cycle to Red and his material. Sanders works for the boys who work for him, which explains why the UCLA Bruins are the scourge of the West and a football power across the nation.

ment. He furnishes his own boat and decoys, picks his own spot, builds his own blind or crouches in the reeds, as he sees fit, and sets his own stool. This separates the duck hunters from the men who merely go duck hunting.

The most important thing is to pick the right location in the first place. As the best duck hunter I ever knew once said, "Remember, decoys and a call are merely aids to good judgment."

In other words, you can be a virtuoso on a duck call, build an invisible blind and put out a hundred decoys, and if the ducks weren't using there naturally you'll have poor shooting.

One day several years ago, I made my setup on a bar about half a mile downstream from some other hunters who were located on a backwater off the river. One of them had a call with an unmistakable tone and he blew nothing on it but a series of eight quacks, the first four very loud and widely spaced, the latter four somewhat lower in volume, shorter and closer together. He repeated this over and over endlessly.

Flock after flock of mallards set their wings when they were above me and sailed straight in to the master caller, usually without even a preliminary circle. I thought, "Well, I never heard anything like it before, but that guy is the world's best."

He was with a party of five or six, but the ducks kept pouring in until, about eleven o'clock, they obviously had filled out. They picked up their decoys and left. Then I got a surprise. The mallards still set their wings over me and sailed straight in to the mouth of that backwater!

The guy was a real duck hunter, all right, but what proved it was his selection of a spot to hunt. Neither the decoys nor his calling had anything to do with the way the ducks poured in. They knew where they wanted to go and that was where they went.

Watch where the ducks are lighting and manage, somehow or other, to get there. You'll probably get shooting as long as weather and food conditions remain the same. Watch for signs that indicate ducks have been using the spot. These may be feathers on a pond or a lot of tracks and droppings on a bar where shallow-water ducks have loafed, rested and picked up gravel. Once you find a place they're using, all that remains is to return at the proper time and figure out the best setup in relation to the surroundings and the wind.

Of course, I have no doubt that all of this may sound pretty complicated to a youngster just starting out to be a duck hunter. He probably can't qualify on some of the points. Well, I can't either.

The way I have it figured, a man needs about 50 years. During the first ten, he will have enthusiasm but not much judgment. All he can do is to shoot whatever ducks he can, and keep on trying.

During the second ten he should begin to learn something about ducks—where to hunt during different periods of the season and what effect different kinds of weather have on their behavior. He should recognize all species that occur in his area.

During the third ten years he should become reasonably proficient in the use of a call. He should learn how to place his decoys for various kinds of ducks under a variety of conditions. And by this time he will have become a fairly good duck shot if he is ever going to. He will seldom shoot at a duck out of range. He'll have some definite ideas about lead and he'll begin to appreciate what wind can do to his shot string. He'll concede freely that duck shooting is the most difficult form of shotgun work.

By the time his fourth decade as a duck hunter rolls around he will conclude that he really doesn't know much. He will have realized that every season, in fact, every week of every season if he hunts a lot, the ducks can show him something new.

In his fifth decade, provided his strength and enthusiasm hold out—and they will be if he is a real duck hunter—he will be fully as good as he thought he was at the end of the first ten years. Whatever he may lack in endurance will be more than compensated for by his knowledge of ducks, duck decoying, duck calling and duck shooting.

Not many men are destined to reach this degree of ability. I only know a few. They are deadly. If their talents could somehow be transferred to all of the enthusiastic youngsters who are trying to be duck hunters, there soon would be no ducks left.

Fortunately, there is only one way to learn how to be a duck hunter. That is by hunting ducks. It is a path beset by difficulties and countless disappointments, but it is singularly rewarding, too. I'm glad I don't know all the answers yet.

doing 39 breeds an injustice to name one of the 40 as best or most handsome. It's simply a matter of owner preference. But it is no injustice to say that the setters, the three varieties, are among the handsomest. Most widely seen among these dogs is the English setter, a fellow that usually wears a white coat flecked with black markings. He has a brother less often seen whose markings are blue, lemon, liver or orange and more rarely a solid white. These dogs were known in the hunting fields of more than 400 years ago. Every so often I find in my mail queries about the Laverack or Llewellyn setters as though these were separate varieties of those good dogs.

Actually, both names indicate strains of the breed. The former was named for the enthusiastic breeder Mr. Edward Laverack who, early in the last century, began breeding setters. So well did he breed that his dogs became outstanding specimens—but they were English setters, not Laverack setters. Much the same can be said for Mr. R. L. Purcell Llewellyn, another English breeder whose name, because of the care and devotion he put into the breed, became attached to the setter. But these two were English setters, not Llewellyn setters.

As you may have read here before, the English setter has two blood cousins, the Irish setter and the Gordon. The first

Elks National Foundation — “The Joy of Giving”

Here's a much appreciated note to Past Grand Exalted Ruler John F. Malley, Chairman of the Elks National Foundation, from Miss Sharon Lou Wilson, of Springfield, Ill., who, having received a $600 Foundation scholarship to further her education at Carthage College, wrote: “Scholarship Foundations such as the Elks, which make it possible for students to obtain a college education, certainly are an inspiration to every young man and woman. Although good scholarship and active civic work are rewarding in themselves, the possibility of furthering these works is a great contribution to the future of America. I shall do my utmost to fulfill your expectations of me as a national contest winner of the Elks National Foundation.”

Chairman Malley of the Elks National Foundation forwards this letter from William Tiffany of Shawnee, Okla., who received one of the 1955 “Most Valuable Student” awards, as an indication of what these scholarships mean to the young people who receive them:

“I owe a great deal to your organization and hope that I can partly repay it through diligent study during the next few years. I regard the Elks as a truly great organization and hope that I can make its ideals and purposes guide my life.”

Exalted Ruler Wilbur P. Werner of Cut Bank, Mont., Lodge, in writing to Past Grant Exalted Ruler Malley about a Foundation Scholarship Award to Dorothy Ann Maguire, who was sponsored by Cut Bank Lodge, sums up very well the general feeling of Elks who sponsor worthy young people for Foundation Awards. “Too few of the Elks realize the importance and good of the National Foundation. This award to a young lady who was sponsored by our lodge will to a great extent correct that condition locally. My most sincere thanks to you and the Elks National Foundation. Needless to say we are tremendously proud of the achievements of Miss Maguire.”

The Lady Elks of Ballard, Wash., Lodge, are taking an active part in the work of the Elks National Foundation and recently purchased three $100 Foundation Certificates. This Ladies' Club is also working actively for the Cerebral Palsy Home, which is the major project of the Washington State Elks. In this photograph Mrs. Agnes Harper, President of the Ladies' Club, presents a check for $300 to Edwin J. Alexander, Chairman of the Grand Lodge Committee on Lodge Activities and a member of Aberdeen, Wash., Lodge, for the Cerebral Palsy Home.

as you know is a handsome red coated fellow, a mite stubborn and not quite so easy to train, the second is a Scotch dog developed by the Duke of Gordon. The latter is black and tan and isn't often seen outside of hunting and show circles. He, too, is a good-looking chap. All three are about the same size.

There are five retrievers but the most popular are the Labrador and the Chesapeake. Both breeds are approximately the same size and both are endowed with remarkable swimming power with coats unusually resistant to water. In fact, in the standard for the breed submitted for approval by the A.K.C. (and approved by that body) it was specified for the Chesapeake that “The Chesapeake's coat should resist water in the same way that a duck's feathers do. When he leaves the water and shakes himself his coat should not hold water at all, being merely moist.” From the standpoint of beauty the golden retriever is probably the handsomest. This is a Russian dog that was considerably refined in the hands of English breeders. He is a beautiful golden color and a truly noble looking dog. He has an excellent record in the field, too. But he doesn't score very often, as his is not a widely distributed breed in this country. There are the curly-coated and flat-coated retrievers, but neither are very well known outside of breeding circles. The weimaraner referred to earlier is said to be an expert huntsman's assistant. He is further distinguished by the color of his coat, a smooth coat of varying shades of grey. The breed was developed by the nobles of the court of Weimar, Germany, originally as an all-purpose breed. In its early days it was restricted to Germany and no dogs of the breed were permitted to leave the borders of that country. According to the standard of the Weimaraner Club of

WHERE WILL YOU GO IN FLORIDA?

Florida needn't be expensive—not if you know just where to go for whatever you seek in Florida. And if there's any man who can give you the facts you want, it's Norman Ford, founder of the world-famous Globetrotters Club. (Yes, Florida is his home whenever he isn't traveling!)

His big book, Norman Ford's Florida, tells you first of all, road by road, mile by mile, everything you'll find in Florida, whether you're on vacation, or looking over job, business, real estate, or retirement prospects.

Through his experienced advice you can learn exactly where you can retire now on the money you've got, whether it's a little or a lot. (If you need a part-time or seasonal job to help out your income, he tells you where to pick up extra income.) Because Norman Ford always tells you where life in Florida is pleasantest on a small income, he can help you to take life easy now.

If you're going to Florida for a job with a future or a business of your own, his talks with hundreds of business men and state officials, etc., let him pin-point the towns you want to know about. If you've ever wanted to run a tourist court or own an orange grove, he tells you today's inside story of these popular investments.

Yes, no matter what you seek in Florida, this big book (with well over 100,000 words and plenty of maps) gives you the facts you want. Price—only $2, only a fraction of the money you'd spend needlessly if you went to Florida blind. Use coupon to order.

America, the parent club had authority to force the right breeding to the point where specimens not measuring up to the physical and temperamental requirements set for the breed were destroyed, with the result that there never have been more than 1,500 weimaraners in Germany. Eventually the embargo was circumvented and a few of the dogs found their way into this country. Today the breeding standards are still high. Originally an all-purpose dog, this fellow later became a trailer and still later a retriever having no superior on land or water. The weimaraner is a clean, quiet and exceptionally intelligent dog and due to its scarcity is seldom a kennel dog. However, if you're looking to buy one be prepared to lay quite a few chips put into effect by the Nationalist Government is the land-to-the-tiller project. It is the only one of its kind in the entire Far East worthy of mention. A similar program in Japan contributed heavily to financial inflation when landowners were paid in cash for their land. In Korea there was not sufficient wherewithal to support it adequately. In the province of Kashmir, in northwest India, the Indian Government simply confiscated the land from its owners without compensation, and distributed it to the peasants.

BARGAIN PARADISES OF THE WORLD

This is a book on how to double what your money can buy. For that is what spending a few weeks or months or longer in the world's Bargain Paradises amounts to.

And why not when you can retire to:

The Azores or the Canaries—islands of tropical flowers, sandy beaches, and the charm of Old Spain—with rents of about $20 a month, groceries for a couple at $10 a week, and servants $5 a month each.

The lotus-covered mountains lakes of Kashmir, where a furnished houseboat with four turbaned servants rents for $70 a month. Total costs for a couple run about $175 a month—in the most beautiful spot on earth.

The South Seas? Tahiti has found out about the Yankee dollar. But there's brilliant Sigatoka Beach at Suva or reef-girt Norfolk or Lord Howe Island, the Bargain Paradise of the South Seas today.

Throughout this big book you learn where to spend a while in the West Indies, Mexico (where living costs dropped 33% when the peso was revalued last spring), South America, or the marvelous Balearic Islands where two can live like Kings for $35 a week.

You read about cities and towns where it's always spring, about mountain hideaways, tropical islands as colorful as Tahiti but nearer home, modern cities where you can live for less, and surf washed coastal resorts.

If you've ever wanted to travel but wondered how you could afford it; if you have a little income but wonder how you'd ever be able to retire on that; if you want a life of luxuries on what you'd get only necessities back home, then you want Bargain Paradises of the World.

on the table because the dogs are relatively few and highly valued.

There are two varieties of spaniel, chief of which is the familiar cocker, perhaps one of the most popular breeds in the United States right now. While these little fellows were bred to hunt they are not used that way today as much as they were many years ago. Two varieties of cocker are the English and American. The latter is the smaller of the two and because of his smallness and insufficient strength is not very helpful in rough broken country or locations where there is dense underbrush. The English variety, being larger, is naturally stronger and is most often used when the cocker is used at all.

There are some 18 varieties of hounds

In Formosa, however, a two-year detailed land survey of the entire island was made by expert agronomists, and during the following two years the farm land was apportioned to its tenant farmers on a basis wholly equitable to its previous owners as well as to the farm tenants themselves. As a result, more than ninety per cent of Formosa's former tenant farmers now own their own land, for which the previous owners have been fully compensated.

The program was put into effect by the

WHERE TO RETIRE ON A SMALL INCOME

This book selects out of the hundreds of thousands of communities in the U. S. and its island territories only those places where living costs are less, where the surroundings are pleasant, and where nature and the community get together to guarantee a good time from fishing, boating, gardening, concerts, or the like. The book never overlooks the fact that some people must get part time or seasonal work to pad out their income.

It covers cities, towns, and farms throughout America—from New England, south to Florida, west to California and north to the Pacific Northwest. It includes both Hawaii and the American Virgin Islands. Some people spend hundreds of dollars trying to get information like this by travelling around the country. Frequently they fail—there is just too much of America to explore.

Where to Retire on a Small Income saves you from that danger. Yet the big 1955 edition costs only $1.

but the two most used in the hunting field are the beagle, largely for rabbits and the coonhound, relentless enemy of the raccoon. Oh yes, there's the foxhound, both American and English types, the latter being the larger in size. While the foxhound is a hunting dog, he's by no means a gun dog and scarcely belongs in this article.

The training of a good gun dog requires a maximum of patience and no little time to develop a good hunter. For this reason should you think to buy a well trained dog for field work don't be surprised if you find the price is higher than the proverbial cat's back. The good dog broken to the field is well worth the money, as any experienced sportsman knows.

Joint Commission on Rural Reconstruction with a total of five members—two Americans and three Chinese, one of whom, the capable and knowledgeable Dr. Chiang Monlin, is chairman. Their two-year land survey required some nine million record cards, cross indexed by land and owner. When this was completed, a valuation of 2½ times the annual market value of its crop was placed on each acre of land, based on 1949, an average good year.

The first step in the program was to place a top limit of 37.5 per cent on payments of crop by the tenant-farmers for their combined rent, interest and taxes, which practically reversed in the tenant-farmers' favor the previous percentage paid out and retained by them. Since then, the figure of "37.5" has become a byword in Formosa, and the Formosan farmers grin happily at the mere mention of it.

This immediate improvement in the condition of the tenant-farmers lasted two years until the land survey was completed. Then the final step of the program was put into effect. Each landowner was allowed to retain, whether he cultivated it himself or not, 7.5 acres of farmland. All in excess of this amount was sold to the tenant-farmers who actually worked it. The owners were paid 30 per cent of the sale price in stocks in Formosa's cement, fertilizer and other large industrial plants (these stocks have already jumped in market value from Formosa $2.00 to $9.00), and 70 per cent in Land Bonds entitling them to twenty semi-annual payments in crops from the land over a period of ten years. Government public land, formerly the property of Japanese, was distributed on the same basis.

TO COMPENSATE for the nation's inability to broaden its agricultural base, because only one quarter of Formosa is arable, the Government has introduced new agricultural methods which the former tenant-farmers, now landowners, are voluntarily and eagerly adopting. These are bringing four crops a year where only three grew before; they are teaching the farmers modern scientific methods of pest control, and furnishing the wherewithal with which to apply them. As a result, Formosa is now self-sufficient in food. And, having given buying power to farm families who until now were hand-to-mouth sharecroppers, and who are now purchasing farm implements and consumer goods, new industries are springing into being with consequent great increases in industrial employment.

The man principally responsible for initiating this magnificent achievement is Chen Cheng, who has spent most of his sixty years in the military service of his country. He is a four-star general who at various times has been Chief of Staff, Minister of War, and Premier of the Republic, and who last year was elected Vice President. He realized that it was the failure of his Government to carry out land reform on the mainland that gave the Communists their most effective propaganda weapon among the peasant masses, and he was definitely determined that that error should not be repeated in Formosa.

I called on Vice President Chen at his home, a comfortable little house almost in the heart of Taipei, set back from the roadway and fronted by a picket fence and grass lawn so that, once inside its gate, it seemed far removed from the clangor of the city streets only a few short steps away.

Of medium height, slender to the point of seeming frail, courteous in the tradition of Old China, the Vice President might easily be mistaken, by one unacquainted with his record, for an elderly Chinese scholar with horizons limited to academic reflection. Except for his dark gray eyes which twinkle with amusement while he exchanges pleasantries with his guest, but which, when he speaks of the Communists on the mainland, turn to glittering points of hard, cold steel.

Chen Cheng believes that the Western world is naive in its approach to the world Communist problem. "Communist aggression," he says, "knows no bounds. The Soviet and its satellites now occupy most of the earth. They will want a breathing spell to prepare to get the rest of it. Giving up Indochina is making neutralists out of the southeast Asian countries. It has led people in this part of the world to wonder whether the American people really understand what is going on."

"The Communists," he continued, "are not changing their aims or their strategy. They are altering their tactics with talk of cease-fire, compromise, concessions, and round-table conferences, in order to confuse the Western nations and to make them into neutralists too; and to create divisions among the American people, and to divide them from their allies."

He paused for a moment while we sipped our tea, and I waited for him to continue. I felt he wanted to choose carefully the words with which he wished to make his own position, and that of his Government, unmistakably clear.

"By now," he said, "you have seen for yourself what we are doing here in Formosa. We are doing it for a definite purpose. We are not going to co-exist with Communism only as long as it is willing to let us live. We will not give up one more inch of territory anywhere, and that includes the offshore islands. And when we are ready, we will go back to the mainland, and our chances for doing that are growing better every day."

In addition to having transformed Formosa's agricultural economy, the Joint Commission for Rural Reconstruction (JCRR) undertook other responsibilities bearing directly upon the welfare of the farmer and his family. They established 362 health stations, two-thirds of which are staffed each with full-time physicians and nurses, the others with nurses only.

The health stations are not handouts by the National Government. They are built by the local villages, under JCRR guidance. When the type of clinic specified by JCRR has been built and equipped, JCRR provides a kit of essential medical supplies, furnishes bicycles for home-visiting midwives, supplies radios (already some 6,000) in farm areas to receive the "Farmers Hour" program and health and disease prevention programs. These activities come under the direction of the Provincial Health Administration, and are tremendously effective.

Take, for example, a health station I visited in a typical farm community a few miles north of Taipei. There are 1,280 people in the area served by this clinic. When the station opened, there were 694 cases of trachoma—more than half the population—in this one district alone. In the three months since then this was reduced by the almost unbelievable figure of 90 per cent, through direct medical treatment and disease prevention education. Other diseases common to the Far East, because of lack of adequate knowledge of personal hygiene and lack of knowledge of the manner in which diseases are communicated, are being similarly attacked and reduced in incidence. Tuberculosis, of which there are five million known cases on the island, is one of them.

FOR centuries, scholarship was greatly revered in China, probably because so few of the people were able to attain it, and to the illiterate masses the ability to read and write words that conveyed meaning seemed to border on the miraculous. Even until fairly recently it was estimated that as many as 80 per cent of all the Chinese people were totally illiterate. Today, in Formosa, under the many reform programs simultaneously being conducted, 87 per cent of all children of school age are in school. And the National University in Taipei, which until the end of World War II was restricted to Japanese, now houses several thousand Chinese students who are being educated in its colleges in a variety of professions and sciences.

Farmers in Formosa, most of them sharecroppers until a year or two ago, are building brick houses. This, for a Chinese farmer, is something new under the sun. He buys his seed and fertilizer and sells his crops through the Farmer Association, a non-governmental cooperative, in his district. When you consider that an average brick farmhouse costs Formosa $40,000 (U.S. $2,000), and that there are no building loans of any kind available and that the houses must be paid for in cash, and that they are springing up on farms all over the island, the transformation in the status of tenant-farmers and their families on Formosa becomes quite clear.

Native industries are expanding rapidly, and new industries are continually being introduced. Consumer goods, soaps, toiletries, cotton goods, and an almost endless variety of others, are being manufactured in Formosa in competition with imported products, and are doing extremely well. Basic industries, aluminum, cement, fertilizer, heavy machinery, shipbuilding, and others, each year employ increasing thousands of workers who are being trained in a new variety of skills.

Typical is the Chinese Petroleum Corporation, which imports two million barrels of crude oil a year from the Near East, refines it in the gigantic refinery built at Kaohsiung, in southern Formosa, and pipelines a multitude of finished products to every part of the island. Forty-one year old Jerome Hu, a chemical and petroleum engineer, who took me on a tour of the refinery, is not only its manager, but bears in addition the responsibility of caring for its 1,800 employes, many of whom live in houses on company premises.

Most of these large industrial plants, some of which are government owned, are financed by United States Government dollars. If American financial aid should stop, for any reason, it is probable that the Formosa industrial structure would collapse. The government and the private Chinese companies, however, are gearing their operations and their plans on the known fact that this support cannot continue forever, and hope eventually to become self-sustaining and independent of the need of foreign aid.

As Mr. K.Y. Yin, Minister of Economic Affairs, put it, Formosa has never been an independent, viable state. For fifty years it was an appendage of the Japanese empire. And before that its contacts were direct with the China mainland. Now that it is on its own it is confronted with wholly new economic problems. The answer to them, as he outlined it to me, is gradually to introduce a program of voluntary austerity until, once again, the Republic of China can be reestablished on the mainland, when Formosa will once more become a province of China instead of having to bear the entire burden of a national government in exile in the midst of civil war. His program, which he admits will undoubtedly be an unpopular one, but which he says must soon be put into effect if Formosa is to be able to stand on its own feet, is only ten words in length: Produce as much as possible, use as little as possible. Or, in even less words: Expand production, cut consumption.

SINCE I had heard much about the "double load" of government in Formosa, national and provincial, I called on the man I thought might give the best explanation for it from the Nationalist point of view, Chang Tao-fan, president of the Legislative Yuan, the National Parliament.

There is no question about the tremendous load this imposes upon Formosa, Mr. Chang agreed. But, he said, there is no alternative other than to surrender to the Communists, which the Nationalist Government will never do. The reason for maintaining a complete National Government on Formosa is simple and understandable, he said, and it may be stated in this way:

If the government on Formosa were only a provincial government, it could not accurately call itself a government of the Republic of China. The membership was elected in the several provinces of China, and represents those provinces in exile. This membership constitutes a "long parliament," as it would be impossible to hold new elections that would be representative of the several provinces until the Nationalist Government returns to the mainland. The national legislature promulgates laws for all of China even though they are not enforceable at the moment; but mainlanders are made aware of the differences between these laws and the kind of laws now being enforced on the mainland.

In other words, said Mr. Chang, this legislature is not playing at being a national government. It is actually working at being good national government, with a full awareness that it cannot put its decrees into effect anywhere but in Formosa at the moment—but with the hope that it will attract to it the sympathy and allegiance of mainland Chinese who are beginning to find out at first-hand what Communism really means.

Throughout all Formosa a beehive activity is under way. No one, from the highest official to the lowliest laborer, is waiting for some dramatic change to take place, or hesitating because of an impending crisis. Formosa is building its way, in agriculture, industry and commerce; in education, health and social improvement; not on a day-to-day basis, but in a spirit of continuing development. The long-range hope is for return to the mainland; the immediate goal is to build and expand Formosa's own resources.

Formosa, like almost any other place on earth, is what you want to make of it, particularly if you happen to be a foreign correspondent engaged in sending spot news to your home newspaper or press service. Soviet writers who have visited the United States have reported to their Moscow journals about discrimination against the American Negro; about sharecropper hardships and intolerance in some sections of the country; about five percenter scandals in Washington; and about anything else they could find—juvenile delinquency, for example—that would present a one-sided and wholly out-of-focus picture of what the United States really is.

Many foreign correspondents approach Formosa in much the same spirit—on the lookout for a bit of scandal here, an act of subversion there, or an unjustified hardship imposed by the security authorities, and limit their reports wholly to this kind of "shocker" story. As a result, they come up with a curious kind of picture of a people who are struggling valiantly against heavy odds which we in the United States fortunately do not have to face—a picture that is as lopsided as it is unfair.

This is not universal by any means. There are some excellent reporters in Formosa who are doing a first rate job by any standard. But there are enough of them, particularly "feature writers," who seem to be doing their darndest to report only such discreditable bits of gossip as they can glean from the darker areas of the day's news, and who ignore completely the positive achievements that stand large before their very eyes.

Of all the pieces of countries that have been truncated by Moscow-Peiping mutual aggression pacts, Formosa, in this writer's opinion, is doing the best job in the entire Far East of withstanding the threat of Communist onslaught; and has the best chance of becoming the David that may destroy the Asian Communist Goliath—provided the West is not beguiled into selling the Nationalists down the river, or, by withholding the aid they need, pulling the rug out from under their feet.

Visiting the Lodges with John L. Walker

nearing completion in Newport. Arrangements for this interesting trip were made by Past District Deputy R. M. Ward of Newport News.

The Grand Exalted Ruler then travelled to NORFOLK LODGE and was greeted at the city limits by E.R. L. A. Hudson, Donald S. McClarin, Treasurer of the Elks State Association, a number of Elks and a police escort. That evening an informal dinner party was held in his honor. On the morning of September 9th, Mr. Walker paid a visit to PORTSMOUTH LODGE, where he enjoyed a luncheon with the officers and some of the ladies. Grand Chaplain William A. Brown, was present, as was Faith Young, who won second place in the Virginia State Scholarship contest, and who was presented a check at the luncheon. Miss Young also received a special award from the Elks National Foundation. Second Vice-President E. L. Curtin was in charge of arrangements. That evening Norfolk Lodge gave a dinner party for the Grand Exalted Ruler which was attended by Past Grand Exalted Ruler Robert S. Barrett, Grand Chaplain Brown, State President Francis Howard, State Vice-President E. L. Curtin and many past and present officers of the lodge. Hampton, Newport News, Portsmouth, Suffolk and Onancock Lodges participated with Norfolk in the meeting which was held on the night of the 9th. There was a large group in attendance, and the principal speeches were made by Dr. Barrett and Mr. Walker. The following morning, Mr. Walker paid an informal visit to SUFFOLK LODGE and PETERSBURG LODGE on his way to his home in Roanoke. Petersburg Lodge arranged a luncheon in his honor, at which were present Exalted Ruler Joseph B. Kirkland and his wife, C.F. Curtice, Secretary of the Virginia State Association, and his wife, as well as other prominent Elks.

On September 17th, the Grand Exalted Ruler was in New York City for the Down-State Conference held at the Hotel Commodore, with Past Grand Exalted Ruler George I. Hall presiding. This luncheon meeting, at which Past Grand Exalted Ruler James T. Hallinan made a stirring address, was attended by all Exalted Rulers and Secretaries of the Southeast, East and East Central Districts; also the District Deputies, State Vice-Presidents and Trustees of these Districts. Present were Grand Exalted Rulers James R. Nicholson, Sam Stern and William J. Jernick; Frank D. O'Connor, member of the Grand Lodge Auditing Committee; John F. Scileppi, Chief Justice, Grand Forum; James A. Gunn, member of Grand Lodge Activities Committee, and Franklin J. Fitzpatrick, President of the New York State Elks Association.

The following day the Up-State Conference was held at ONEIDA, LODGE, with Past Grand Exalted Ruler George I. Hall presiding and Past Grand Exalted Ruler Hallinan again addressing the gathering with a forceful speech. This luncheon meeting was attended by all Exalted Rulers and Secretaries of the other seven Districts of New York State. District Deputies, State Vice-Presidents and Trustees of these Districts were also in attendance. Present were Past Grand Exalted Rulers George I. Hall, Grand Trustee Ronald J. Dunn, Chief Justice Scileppi, Frank D. O'Connor and Franklin J. Fitzpatrick.

Following the luncheon conference at Oneida, the Grand Exalted Ruler, accompanied by State President Fitzpatrick, proceeded by a car to Seneca Falls, N. Y., making a brief stop on the way to SYRACUSE LODGE, where he was welcomed by Exalted Ruler Manley L. Markell and the officers of that lodge.

After a brief inspection of the Lodge facilities, the Grand Exalted Ruler and party continued on to AUBURN LODGE and were greeted there by Exalted Ruler William R. Kahl, District Deputy Alvin W. Burkhard and State Vice-President Philip J. Conboy of the North Central District. About 100 members of Auburn Lodge were present at a buffet supper honoring Brother Walker, following which the party proceeded on to SENECA FALLS.

On September 19th, accompanied by Past District Deputy G. Kenneth Wayne, Sheriff of Seneca County, State President Franklin J. Fitzpatrick and a delegation of about 40 officers and members of Seneca Falls Lodge and surrounding lodges, Grand Exalted Ruler Walker was the guest of the Commandant of Sampson, N. Y. Air Force Base. The Grand Exalted Ruler's party lunched at the Officers' Mess and later inspected the Base Hospital and visited the Air Force Museum.

The report of the banquet given by Seneca Falls lodge that evening in the Grand Exalted Ruler's honor, as well as his remaining visits to New York State lodges, will be continued in our December issue.

Christmas project—a toy chest with "secret lock"

BY

drilling for screws. Countersink these well.

SQUARING UP THE BODY. When all the screws have been tightened, but before the glue sets, measure across each pair of diagonally opposite corners. If the diagonals are equal, the case is square. If not, apply gentle pressure to the two corners that are farther apart, and temporarily nail a stick across the edges to hold them in until the glue sets.

Cut the bottom to fit inside and rest against the corner cleats. Before fastening it in, attach the feet to it with glue and two screws apiece. Attach the bottom by driving a screw through each corner into a cleat, but do not glue it in. The lock catch is easier to install with the bottom removed, although this toy chest is practical without the "secret lock".

Fill screw holes and gaps, and any holes in the plywood edges. Apply undercoat and nonpoisonous enamel.

BE YOUR OWN LOCKSMITH. The combination lock which will intrigue any youngster is made of dowel, an angle bracket, and four wooden checkers. It is not hard to build, but like anything mechanical, may take a bit of fussing to get working right.

Mark the centers on the checkers and drill a $\frac{1}{4}$ " hole through, taking pains to get it square. Glue a bit of $\frac{1}{4}$ " dowel into two checkers and file a notch in these as shown in Fig. 2.

Hacksaw one leg of a 2" angle bracket short back of the inside hole. File the remaining part slightly rounded. Above and below the inside hole in the long leg drill two $\frac{3}{16}$ " holes $\frac{7}{8}$ " apart.

Drill a $\frac{5}{32}$ " hole in the center of a $1\frac{1}{4}$ " length of $\frac{3}{8}$ " dowel. With a file, shape it as shown in Fig. 2. Put a long 8-32 machine bolt through the original countersunk hole in the bracket and screw it into the hole in the dowel, in which it will cut its own threads. Then tighten a nut against the dowel.

The latch knob is screwed onto the bolt

THERE will be fewer toy cars, building blocks and plastic spacemen underfoot if a youngster has a chest to store them in. Add a real lock that works by a secret combination, and the chest becomes a fascinating toy in its own right. Now is the time to start building it for Christmas.

Plywood simplifies construction, especially if your dealer will cut pieces to size. The $\frac{1}{2}$ " thickness will do for a chest up to 36" long.

The one shown is smaller— $14\frac{1}{2}$ " high including the feet, 14" wide, and 24" long. You can change the size or proportions and still use the same design.

Cut a front and a back the same size. Make the two ends 1" narrower than the desired outside width, because they will fit inside the front and back. The bottom fits inside all four walls and therefore is the same width as the ends, but 1" shorter than the long panels. (Fig. 1).

As the drawing shows, the lid may be cut to overlap the front and ends by $\frac{1}{4}$ ", or it may be made exact size and trimmed with quarter-round molding on three edges. This was done on the chest shown.

CLEATS JOIN CORNERS. Buy some $\frac{3}{4}$ " square molding or rip one-by-twos in half lengthwise. From this cut four cleats $\frac{1}{2}$ " shorter than the wall height. With glue and 1" screws, fasten these cleats $\frac{1}{2}$ " inside the ends of the front and back, flush with the top edge but $\frac{1}{2}$ " up from the lower edge. Countersink the screws, but not so deeply that they break through.

Glue and screw the ends into the rabbets formed by the cleats, spacing the screws so that they miss the first set. It is a good idea to clamp the ends in position, taking care to align the edges, before outside the chest after the lock is assembled. If you can not find a knob with an 8-32 thread in it, drill a 5/32" hole in a wooden knob. It will screw on tightly.

In the front of the chest drill three holes as shown in the drawing. Cut a lock cover from 1/8" composition board or thin hardwood, filing a notch in it for the latch hook. Holding the latch in this notch, drill through the two 3/16" holes to make matching holes in the cover. Countersink these and four mounting holes at the ends of the cover.

ALIGNING LATCH GUIDES. Push the latch bolt through the middle hole in the chest and hold it with a stack of washers and a nut. Put the notched checkers in the other two holes, turning them so that the dowel crossbar lies in the notches.

Now clamp the lock cover with its spacer blocks in position. Stick two 3/16" drills or big nails through the matching holes in the cover and the latch, loosening the clamps if necessary to position the cover so that these line up accurately and the drills or nails are at 90° to the inner chest surface. Then remove them and drill through the aligned holes into the chest wall to start the guide screws.

These are simply 1 1/4" flathead wood screws. If they are correctly aligned, the latch should slide smoothly on the unthreaded part of their shanks. A short 1/4" compression spring may be slipped on each, between the latch and the chest front, to retract the latch and pull the cross dowel out of the checker notches. You can buy such springs at electric-motor or vacuum-cleaner repair shops.

USE OUTSIDE HINGES. Because tots may lock pets, or even each other, into a box, be sure to bore two or three good-sized air holes in the back. Furthermore, use plain 3" or 4" strap hinges screwed on from outside, instead of butt hinges set into gains. Then, if the lock jams, the lid can be removed with a screwdriver.

With the lid hinged on, remove the bottom for mounting the lid catch. This is a spring cupboard catch, set on a small wooden wedge to tilt it forward. Mounted straight, it may snap open when the lid is jerked up.

The lid will snap shut even with the latch in the engaged position, thanks to the spring catch. To open the lock, the checkers are turned to align the notches with the cross dowel, the latch knob is pulled back, and the lid raised.

SETTING THE COMBINATION. Slip a washer on each checker shaft and glue on the outside checker and knob. Drive a small screw near each dial as a pointer. Paint or burn figures into the edge of the checkers, or draw them on a strip of paper and glue them on.

THE EXTRA TOUCHES. A child's own name on the chest will make it doubly valued. It can be painted on, or the letters may be cut out of plywood and nailed on. The ones on the chest in the photograph are 1/4" stock, gilded on the face and accented with bright red on all edges. (If you're not too sure about your hand lettering and numbering, the Elks Workshop, through the coupon on these pages, is making available without charge a pattern alphabet for the youngster's name and numbers for the lock.)

A lift-out tray will hold that miscellany of small things every child collects. The one shown slides on cleats screwed inside the ends of the chest. To allow the slotted lid catch to work, the tray slide on that end is made of two pieces and set off the chest wall on washers as shown in Fig. 3.

The tray can be made of plywood as shown in the same drawing, with as many partitions as desired.

BRUCE A. CAMPBELL

In the passing of Past Grand Exalted Ruler Bruce A. Campbell, the Order loses a great and beloved leader.

When Bruce Campbell entered the Grand Lodge in 1910 he was a tall, handsome young man, possessor of a fine logical and legal mind, an impressive appearance, an unusually persuasive and powerful voice and a charm that soon brought his recognition as one of the most convincing and effective speakers in the Grand Lodge.

He had been a member of that body only a short time when he was selected as chairman of a committee entrusted with the responsibility of solving one of the most troublesome problems ever confronting the Grand Lodge, the question of legalizing State Associations and what rights and responsibilities should be given them.

At the end of three years, constitutional and statutory amendments for the legalization and regulation of State Associations recommended by his committee had been adopted by the Grand Lodge and State Associations were in operation.

Their accomplishments in the strengthening and advancement of the Order reflect his soundness of judgment, his clearness of vision and his capacity for successful concentration on the solution of a troublesome problem.

The next year he was unanimously elected Grand Exalted Ruler.

When our country entered the First World War, he became a member of the Elks National War Relief Commission.

Upon the conclusion of the outstanding service of that Commission he was made a member of the National Memorial and Publication Commission and played an important part in the creating and the managing of our Memorial Building and our Elks Magazine.

Our present Grand Exalted Ruler has taken as his slogan for the year:- SERVE ELKDOM—LIVE ELKDOM.

Were he seeking an Elk properly to personify the qualities of serving and living Elkdom, he would have found in Bruce Campbell such a personification of those qualities.

Brother Campbell served Elkdom, he lived Elkdom, because he had a love for the Order that almost passed understanding.

He possessed a most unusual capacity for friendship and had thousands of friends, devoted friends. He was loyal in his friendships and they lasted through his entire life.

As Grand Exalted Ruler, Brother Campbell was responsible for the first denunciation of Communism, then called Bolshevism, by the Order of Elks and probably the first by any national American organization, when, in 1918, he said to the Grand Lodge members in Session:-

"I recommend that at this Session of the Grand Lodge strong and vigorous resolutions be passed placing our organization on record as pledged to do everything within its power to drive from this country of ours all organizations and individuals who are not in sympathy with our form of government, who do not give undivided allegiance to its flag and who seek to disorganize and disrupt the great principles upon which America is founded."

The resolution that he suggested was unanimously adopted by the Grand Lodge.

Brother Campbell was married shortly after he became an Elk and had a very happy married life.

Of all the members of his family he was justifiably proud.

Notwithstanding the time he was obliged to give to his practice in the legal profession where he attained a standing of distinction, notwithstanding the time he gave to his Elk activities including contacts with lodges all over the surrounding territory and the attention he gave to that splendid movement, the Illinois State Elks Crippled Children Clinic, he was a devoted family man.

This was rendered somewhat easier by the understanding of and the affection for the Order entertained by Mrs. Campbell who accompanied him on nearly all his Elk visits through the years and is almost as well known as he among the members of the Order.

His physical strength weakened during the recent years but his spirit of brotherhood, his desire to continue fraternal associations with his brother Elks strengthened rather than diminished. Mrs. Campbell's care of him during that period won the admiration of all who have witnessed it and contributed materially to the comfort of his declining years.

In the passing of Past Grand Exalted Ruler Bruce Campbell there has gone a loyal American, and a great Elk, but he has left us the record of his service to his family, his country and to the Order of Elks that shall last forever.

NOVEMBER

"And, therefore, I, William Bradford (by the grace of God today, and the franchise of these good people) Governor of Plymouth, say— Through virtue of vested power—we shall gather with one accord and hold in the month of November

Thanksgiving unto the Lord."

Now comes Grand Exalted Ruler Walker reminding all Elks in his November message appearing in this issue that this year Thanksgiving week is the date selected for "Know Your America Week", which the Order has effectively supported ever since its creation three years ago.

As the Grand Exalted Ruler notes, November is the month in which plans are made for the annual Memorial Services to be held the first Sunday in December.

Also, the Lodge Activities Committee has set November as the date of a "Plan Elkdom's Progress Class" in honor of the Grand Exalted Ruler.

In November comes Veterans Day to which the members of the Order under the leadership and with the cooperation of the Elks National Service Commission, will be giving proper recognition.

And so, all in all, this November is going to be an exceptionally active one among the Subordinate Lodges and their individual members.

May all Elks accept the responsibilities and opportunities offered and meet them in a manner contributing to the prestige of the Order.

The next year he was unanimously elected Grand Exalted Ruler.

When our country entered the First World War, he became a member of the Elks National War Relief Commission.

Upon the conclusion of the outstanding service of that Commission he was made a member of the National Memorial and Publication Commission and played an important part in the creating and the managing of our Memorial Building and our Elks Magazine.

Our present Grand Exalted Ruler has taken as his slogan for the year: SERVE ELKDOM—LIVE ELKDOM.

Were he seeking an Elk properly to personify the qualities of serving and living Elkdom, he would have found in Bruce Campbell such a personification of those qualities.

Brother Campbell served Elkdom, he lived Elkdom, because he had a love for the Order that almost passed understanding.

He possessed a most unusual capacity for friendship and had thousands of friends, devoted friends. He was loyal in his friendships and they lasted through his entire life.

As Grand Exalted Ruler, Brother Campbell was responsible for the first denunciation of Communism, then called Bolshevism, by the Order of Elks and probably the first by any national American organization, when, in 1918, he said to the Grand Lodge members in Session:-

"I recommend that at this Session of the Grand Lodge strong and vigorous resolutions be passed placing our organization on record as pledged to do everything within its power to drive from this country of ours all organizations and individuals who are not in sympathy with our form of government, who do not give undivided allegiance to its flag and who seek to disorganize and disrupt the great principles upon which America is founded."

The resolution that he suggested was unanimously adopted by the Grand Lodge.

Brother Campbell was married shortly after he became an Elk and had a very happy married life.

Of all the members of his family he was justifiably proud.

Notwithstanding the time he was obliged to give to his practice in the legal profession where he attained a standing of distinction, notwithstanding the time he gave to his Elk activities including contacts with lodges all over the surrounding territory and the attention he gave to that splendid movement, the Illinois State Elks Crippled Children Clinic, he was a devoted family man.

This was rendered somewhat easier by the understanding of and the affection for the Order entertained by Mrs. Campbell who accompanied him on nearly all his Elk visits through the years and is almost as well known as he among the members of the Order.

His physical strength weakened during the recent years but his spirit of brotherhood, his desire to continue fraternal associations with his brother Elks strengthened rather than diminished. Mrs. Campbell's care of him during that period won the admiration of all who have witnessed it and contributed materially to the comfort of his declining years.

In the passing of Past Grand Exalted Ruler Bruce Campbell there has gone a loyal American, and a great Elk, but he has left us the record of his service to his family, his country and to the Order of Elks that shall last forever.

NOVEMBER

"And, therefore, I, William Bradford (by the grace of God today, and the franchise of these good people) Governor of Plymouth, say— Through virtue of vested power—we shall gather with one accord and hold in the month of November

Thanksgiving unto the Lord."

Now comes Grand Exalted Ruler Walker reminding all Elks in his November message appearing in this issue that this year Thanksgiving week is the date selected for "Know Your America Week", which the Order has effectively supported ever since its creation three years ago.

As the Grand Exalted Ruler notes, November is the month in which plans are made for the annual Memorial Services to be held the first Sunday in December.

Also, the Lodge Activities Committee has set November as the date of a "Plan Elkdom's Progress Class" in honor of the Grand Exalted Ruler.

In November comes Veterans Day to which the members of the Order under the leadership and with the cooperation of the Elks National Service Commission, will be giving proper recognition.

And so, all in all, this November is going to be an exceptionally active one among the Subordinate Lodges and their individual members.

May all Elks accept the responsibilities and opportunities offered and meet them in a manner contributing to the prestige of the Order.
